Weary Diplomats Fear Russia May Put Wrench Into Non-Intervention

Three Factors Forecast Harmony Among Nine Powers Busy in London, Except Soviet Who are Fearful for Valencia.

REBELS' VICTORY

Insurgent Victory in Spanish War Held Almost Inevitable by British.

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Spanish neutrality sub-committee, reassembling to enact plans for ridding warring Spain of foreign troops, was confronted today by the strong possibility that Soviet Russia would disagree and throw Europe into another diplomatic stalemate.

Despite this threat, the weary diplomats stationed in London as representatives of the principal European powers headed for the day's discussions in an atmosphere more optimistic than any since the Spanish war broke out 15 months ago.

Three factors presaged eventual harmony among the nine powers represented—with the possible exception of Russia:

British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's virtual assurance that Britain was determined not to go to war.

Chamberlain's statement that he had received assurances that Italy had no territorial designs on Spain, including the Balearic Islands in the Western Mediterranean.

The fact that the Spanish Insurgents—aided by Italian and German intervention—had captured Gijon, center of the Valencia Republican government's last resistance in the Spanish northwest. The fall of Gijon will release thousands of Insurgent troops for possibly a conclusive drive against the Valencia armies.

Soviet Opposition

Some quarters felt that the Soviet Union might oppose granting of belligerent rights to the warring forces in Spain before all foreigners are withdrawn—a proposal which won Italy and Germany to support the plan.

The big Communist state is a staunch diplomatic ally of Valencia. Italy, with Germany's approval, had insisted formerly that belligerent rights be accorded to the Insurgents before any withdrawals were made.

No officials here would say so but it was evident, especially following the capitulation of Gijon yesterday, that London believed the insurgents would win in Spain.

Britain therefore was unwilling to make any gesture for the sake of Valencia which eventually might be held against her by a victorious Insurgent regime.

Britain's Viewpoint

In other words, the policy of safeguarding her own business and diplomatic interests dominated Britain's viewpoint.

The unexpected Italian and German willingness to compromise on the intervention question virtually smashed any severe opposition within the British Parliament to the Spanish policy.

Chamberlain told Commons last night he had received "repeated and categorical assurances" that Italy had no designs on Spanish territory.

"I accept those assurances. I am glad they have been given. They relieve us of the necessity of considering the situation which would arise if any material change were made in the western Mediterranean."

Opposition Laborites jeered the Prime Minister from their back benches when he spoke of Italian "assurances."

Chamberlain in the same eight-hour debate made clear that Britain would not support sanctions against Japan because of her invasion of China when consultations of the Washington pact signatories and adherents start in Brussels at the end of the month.

Farley to Back Mahoney

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—The New York Times said today that Postmaster General James A. Farley would make his "first real appearance" in the mayoralty campaign next Tuesday night with a radio appeal for the election of Democratic Jeremiah T. Mahoney. Farley had expressed preference for Mahoney over his primary election rival, Senator Royal S. Copeland, and accepted the honorary chairmanship of a young voters group for the Mahoney-headed, Tammany-endorsed ticket. Farley will speak as Democratic state chairman and a personal friend of Mahoney.

Just Friends

Hollywood, Oct. 22 (AP).—The Examiner, in a copyrighted story today, quotes Greta Garbo as saying she and Leopold Stokowski, orchestra conductor, are "very good friends," but "marriage to him is out of the question." The Swedish film star's name was linked with Stokowski's this week when his wife took up residence in Las Vegas, Nev., reportedly for six weeks, the period necessary to obtain a divorce.

Reds Lose Final Control of Spanish Northwest Area

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

With Insurgents in Northern Spain, Oct. 22 (AP)—The last vestige of government control in northwest Spain vanished today as Generalissimo Francisco Franco's victorious armies swept Asturias (Oviedo Province) from end to end.

Even more complete than the collapse of the defenses of Santander August 25 was the crumpling of the morale of the Savge, dynamite-slinging Asturian miners who formed the Republican government's army in Asturias.

Once the fiercest of all the government forces, the Asturians today were veritable tabby cats, falling over themselves to surrender.

The Asterian "blow up" started when the government leaders scrambled suddenly toward ships in the Gijon harbor and escape to France.

Immediately insurgent supporters in Gijon rose up, took over the city, commandeered the radio station and called all insurgent stations and army headquarters, saying in effect:

"Come and get it. It's yours!"

From all sides yesterday the insurgents came. The fourth brigade of Navarrese troops hammering along the Bay of Biscay from Villa-Viciosa, only 12 miles east of Gijon, marched into the seaport at 3:30 in the afternoon.

Battalions Surrender

With radios blaring the news, the Asturian besiegers of the garrison at Oviedo, southwest of Gijon, marched battalion after battalion into insurgent lines to surrender.

Immediately from battered Oviedo, where a few hours before there had been sniping from house to house, the insurgent garrison started marching to Gijon.

(The Oviedo garrison had been under siege almost since the beginning of the war 15 months ago. Asturians had held parts of the city for months. The rival trenches were only 600 yards apart in one sector.)

From Pravia, southwest of Gijon, the insurgents marched northeast and took Aviles, the last government seacoast town. The Navarrese also reached Aviles from Gijon, completing a march of some 25 miles in a single day.

Seizure of City

Gijon fell in much the same manner as Santander. Once the government leaders were off in ships and airplanes, citizens and insurgent sympathizers organized and seized the city.

Now with the northwest in control and with a foe no longer at their rear, the insurgents will be able to augment their Aragon lines with 75,000 men from the northwestern forces. Insurgent warcraft that have been blockading Gijon were freed for Mediterranean duty off Barcelona and Valencia.

A prominent officer, toasting Franco's army today, pronounced this "benediction" on international moves to clear foreign soldiers out of Spain:

"They had better hurry or there will be no volunteer problem to worry about. We will evacuate the Valencia government's volunteers for them—as captives."

This is a group of Immaculate Conception parishioners redecorating their church on Delaware avenue, under the direction of their new pastor, the Rev. Stephen Malinowski, who came to Kingston on May 29 this year.

They are:

On ladder, left—Joseph Lukaszewski and Barney Nalepa.

Father Malinowski.

The work of redecorating the church was started last July and Father Malinowski expects that it will be completed November 14. It is being done voluntarily by the parishioners, after their working hours on jobs at which they make their livelihoods, and will save the congregation approximately $10,000, Father Malinowski said.

"The attitude and spirit of the volunteer workers is most encouraging and edifying", said the pastor, "and the same can be said for the cooperation received in various ways from all my parishioners".

A summary of the work done: The three altars were refinished in white and gold, the entire church was washed inside and all of the paintings restored, organ cleaned and refinished and the general decorative scheme on side walls and around windows changed.

The church looks like new after the extensive renovations made for the first time in 35 years by the industrious, and artistically inclined flock of Father Malinowski who is extremely proud, and justly so, of their work.

Forces Deadlocked Today On Shanghai Battlefront; Tokyo Seeks Parley Delay

Shanghai, Oct. 22 (AP)—Chinese and Japanese troops were locked in a heavy battle along the 25-mile Shanghai front today with both sides claiming gains.

In the confusion of attacks and counter-attacks it was virtually impossible for foreign observers to determine the exact situation.

The Japanese army spokesman announced at midday that Japanese had pushed back the Chinese a few hundred yards to occupy Kwangfu, an important Chinese defense position. The Chinese spokesman declared Japanese were driven back at the same point.

A Chinese airman dropped bombs along the Whangpoo river waterfront opposite the International Settlement. A huge cloud of smoke enveloped the Japanese flagship Idzumo, but it was not believed to be damaged.

Shells from Chinese batteries in Pootung, across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai, fell in the Japanese-occupied Hongkew section of the International Settlement. Two of the projectiles struck a British-owned, unoccupied apartment building.

Chinese incendiary bombs started a heavy fire in the eastern Pootung section. A shell exploded outside a police station in the Yangtzepoo area of the settlement, but 60 policemen escaped injury.

Chapel Fires

Huge fires blazed in Chapel, north of the foreign area. Japanese naval officials admitted a Japanese bombing plane was shot down near Nansiang, 11 miles west of Shanghai, but said other bombers inflicted extensive damage on Chinese munitions depots and communication lines.

Japanese also said their aircraft killed hundreds of Chinese fleeing from Kwangfu and that ground forces had cut their way through Chinese lines within slightly more than a mile of Tazang.

The Japanese Shanghai news said 12 Soviet planes had arrived at Lanchow, in the northwest province of Kansu.

New Drive On Tsinan

Dispatches from Tientsin said that Japanese were preparing for a new drive on Tsinan, Shantung province capital. Japanese denied there had been any retirement along the Shantung front. Shipment of Japanese supplies to the south, however, was hindered by floods which washed out railway lines.

One Chinese report on the Shanghai battle was that 10,000 Japanese troops were in danger of being cut off from their base near Wentsaopang Creek, 12 miles northwest of the city.

Chinese said they hoped to encircle the Japanese force by driving three columns totaling 40,000 men into a Japanese spearhead near Tazang.

The Chinese central government at Nanking decided to exempt from import duties all medical supplies and surgical instruments to relieve pressing needs of the war wounded.

The government announced that Chinese destroyed 28 Japanese planes in the last three days, including 24 near Taiyuan in Shansi province.

Will Ask Postponement.

Tokyo, Oct. 22 (AP).—A foreign office spokesman indicated today that Japan will plead a lack of time in which to make preparations and ask a postponement of

Judge Considers Alleged Damage To Highland Well

Whether or not a well, dug down through rock under the basement of a house on Grove street, Highland, was ruined as the result of dynamiting during the construction of a sewer in that village, was the basis of an action brought before Justice Harry E. Schirick in Supreme Court, Thursday.

The action was brought by Bertha H. Meuser, who was represented by Andrew J. Cook, against Louis Petrossi & Sons, Inc., sewer contractors, who were represented by McDevitt, Martin and Stricker. It occupied most of the Thursday session of court.

Justice Walter Hasbrouck, who testified that he had had the contract for remodeling the house in 1930, said that at that time the well contained very fine water and was never known to go dry. He also testified that following the time of the blasting, with particular reference to September 19, 1935, the water had "a milky appearance." The witness gave $3,800 as a fair value of the Meuser property before the blasting operations and $3,400 after, indicating a loss of $400 by damages to the well.

Judge Schirick gave the attorneys 10 days to file papers in the case.

Bank Action

The last case taken up Thursday was an action brought by the State of New York National Bank against Victor Breitfeller and ors. It was stated that although the case had been called each morning during this term of court there had been no appearance by Breitfeller or his attorney, Leo D. Borden. A jury was drawn and Andrew J. Cook presented the cast for the bank. The action was to recover on a note given by Stephen Breitfeller, with a number of endorsers. Judgment had been taken against all of the endorsers except Victor Breitfeller. The original note was for $3,225 and Cashier Harold V. Clayton of the State of New York Bank testified that the amount now due, including interest, was $3,562. The jury, after brief deliberation, brought in a verdict for that amount.

Following the verdict on the note case Judge Schirick adjourned court till 10 o'clock this morning for call of the calendar and dismissed the jurors in attendance until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Ennis Charge Dismissed

Providence, R. I., Oct. 22 (AP)—A complaint charging John E. Ennis of New Bedford, Mass., with the murder of Dr. George W. Webster today was discontinued in Sixth District Court after Assistant Attorney General John H. Nolan had told the court a grand jury would not indict him. Ennis was arrested September 15, charged with the murder by Providence police.

Rondout Creek Harbor Hearing Set for Tuesday

Lieut. Col. McCoach, district engineer of the U. S. Army Engineers office, will hold a public hearing in the city hall on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at which time all persons interested in improvements to the Rondout creek harbor will have an opportunity to be heard.

Mayor Heiselman has long advocated a survey of the entire harbor, and the widening, deepening and extending of the channel in the Rondout creek and development of Rondout Harbor. Another project advocated is the filling in of the swamp land near the mouth of the creek to create industrial sites with deep water frontage.

The war department has sent blanks to rivermen and those owning dock property along the creek to fill out and bring with them to the hearing next Tuesday.

Any suggestions for the improvement of Rondout Harbor are to be submitted in writing by those advancing the suggestions.

Black Smoke Boycott.

Connersville, Ind., Oct. 22 (AP).—When H. W. Ingram refused to close his grocery on Thursday afternoons, rival storekeepers came into his place, bought black cigars and stood around puffing huge clouds of smoke. Officers who came to Ingram's rescue told the 20 members of the delegation to blow their smoke somewhere else.

Heiselman Hits Misleading Statements Made by Judge In Criticising Low Tax Rate

Mayor Proves by Figures from Record that Taxes Were Lowered Using Business Methods.

"JUDGE NO EXPERT"

But Should Refrain from Making Inaccurate Misleading Statements, Says Mayor.

With facts and figures taken from the records of the city and which are open to the public Mayor C. J. Heiselman delivered a smashing attack on his opponent, refuting the charges the city judge has been making that the city tax rate was lowered because of state and federal aid. The "fallacies and inaccuracies of my Democratic opponent" were exposed by the mayor while speaking Thursday evening at the rally of the Republican City Club.

"I realize that the city judge is not a financial expert", said Mayor Heiselman, "that he is not familiar with the costs and methods of municipal government. I do not expect him to be familiar with these matters. But I do think he should refrain from making inaccurate and misleading statements about subjects concerning which he is not familiar". The mayor's remarks were greeted with thunderous applause from the audience that jammed the rooms of the Republican Club to the doors. Mayor Heiselman, who was the last speaker of the evening, said:

During the past four years, local government, with the assistance of the federal and state governments, have been discharging a new and important responsibility—that of furnishing the necessities of life to those, who, through no fault of their own, found themselves unemployed by reason of unfavorable economic conditions which had spread throughout most of the world.

My administration has devoted much of its time, thought and energy in studying and working out the solution of this new function of local government. Administrative units have been formed. Personnel has been trained. Programs of public works have been planned.

This program of welfare and relief included furnishing food, shelter, fuel, clothing and medical attention; old age pensions to the aged; hospitalization and nursing home care for the ill; institutional and private home care for homeless children; care of the blind; assistance to widows left with dependent children, and a work program for the able-bodied unemployed.

During the first two years of my administration, the city controlled and supervised the work relief program, and financial assistance was received from the New York State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration.

During the last two years, the work relief program has been in control and under the supervision of the Federal government, which assumes responsibility for the payroll and a share of the material, with the city supplying engineering plans and at present most of the materials.

The administration of relief, except work relief, is the responsibility of our local Department of Public Welfare. The members of the board, and our relief staff in the excellent job they have done have exhibited such a high degree of understanding, skill and integrity that our administration of relief has been rated by the State Department as one of the best in the State of New York.

While the Federal and State governments have aided local governments in their relief costs, Kingston has done its full share in caring for those who unfortunately found themselves in distress and in need of assistance. That we have done our full share is proved by the amounts which our local government has spent for welfare and relief during recent years.

In 1928, for instance, the tax rate was $40.60. That year the city spent in its budget for welfare the sum of $51,166.

In 1936 the tax rate was only $35.48. Yet in that year, in addition to outside relief assistance from the Federal and State governments, the city spent of its own funds $230,717.73 for welfare and relief. Included in this figure are maturing relief bonds and interest.

Let me call your attention to another fact. Some forms of welfare the city must pay 100 per cent, with no help from either the Federal or State. Let me show you how these costs increased in 1936 over what they were in 1928, and yet the tax rate was over $5 lower in 1936 than it was in 1928.

Study the following figures and see the additional sums we have

Aged Man Fails To "Spot" Golfer At Robbery Trial

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—Elderly Matt Cobb, partially deaf, failed today to positively identify Hollywood golfer John Montague as the man who beat him during a $700 holdup of a roadhouse seven years ago.

Now 74, the white-haired witness hesitated a moment when State Prosecutor Thomas W. McDonald asked if he could pick out his assailant in the courtroom and then said:

"I think (pointing at Montague) that's the man there," he said. Montague was returned from California to face trial on a robbery charge.

Sergeant Paul McGinnis, of the New York state police, following Cobb to the stand, said an envelope containing newspaper clippings telling of Montague's golfing exploits was found in a motor car in which the state charges the golfer's alleged accomplices fled from the scene of the holdup.

The machine, occupied by William Carleton and John Sherry turned over on the highway a few hours after the robbery. Sherry was killed in the accident and Carleton, found dazed at the scene, was convicted of participating in the robbery and served a prison sentence.

"I found a Gladstone bag in the car and a couple of felt hats," the broad shouldered sergeant told the jury.

Contents of Bag

The contents of the bag, it was brought out, included an envelope containing newspaper clippings telling of Montague's—then known to his friends as Laverne Moore—golfing and baseball experiences in central New York.

Montague, before he won acclaim in Hollywood for his exploits on the links, was a golf professional and baseball player in Syracuse, N. Y., and Central New York.

Also included in the bag were several letters addressed to Laverne Moore, and an automobile operator's registration of 1930 issued to the defendant, McGinnis said.

A bag containing golf sticks, claimed by the state to have been found in the car, were put into evidence, as were the registration plates of the roadster and a registration certificate showing the plates were issued to Carleton.

Cobb, when asked to elaborate his identification of Montague as his assailant, said that "he seems too fat for the lad."

Questioned further, Cobb admitted:

"He seems too fat for the lad."

Defense Counsel James M. Noonan, on cross-examination, pressed for a more positive statement from the hard-of-hearing witness.

"You say you think this was the man just because he's stocky, full of face?" the defense examiner asked.

"Yes, and I remember something about him across the eyes," the witness replied.

39 VILLAGE DELEGATES REJECT CIVIL SERVICE.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP).—Representatives of 39 New York villages have rejected a proposal for mandatory extension of state civil service regulations to include their communities.

Only three voted in favor of the plan, said William P. Capes, executive secretary of the state mayors' conference, who introduced the proposal at a meeting here yesterday.

Ilion, Port Chester, Ossining and Peekskill are under state civil service supervision.

BALL STRUCK PRISON OFFICIALS DUMB TODAY.

Washington, N. C., Oct. 22 (AP).—A man walked up to the state prison gate and said: "Let me in: I'm ready." He was Benton Ball, and, as mystified officials learned, had been sentenced to five years for arson in September but was granted a few days to wind up his personal affairs. When Ball was ready, considerate relatives offered to take him to prison to save the county expense.

MURDER CHARGE IS DROPPED AGAINST GARR

Helbyville, Ky., Oct. 22 (AP)—The murder charge against Jack Garr was dismissed today but the fate of his brother, Roy, who admitted shooting Brig. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt was left to the jury.

Bombay, India, Oct 22 (AP).—Mohandas K. Ghandi, 68 and ailing, started "daily talk fasts" today to save his health. He is so weak the slightest conversation tires him so he decided on periods of silence, lasting many hours each day.

Although never formally engaged, Fred B. Snite, Jr., who lives in an iron lung, probably would have wed Rosemary O'Ferrell (above), his father said, if paralysis had not intervened. The girl lives near the Snite home in Miami, Fla.

F.D.R. Begins New Program, Elevates Son First of All

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP).—James Roosevelt's designation as a corodinator for independent federal agencies was viewed by some observers today as a preliminary step in the President's suggested government reorganization program.

The Chief Executive asked Congress, among other proposed revisions, to increase his White House staff to six administrative assistants and contact men. The House voted its approval last summer, and the Senate probably will consider the recommendation at the special session.

James Roosevelt, one of three White House secretaries, emphasized that it was purely the executive work of all the boards, commissions and bureaus involved that his father wished coordinated.

The son, whose long legs stretch beneath a desk in a room across the White House lobby from his father's office, referred to himself as a "clearing house." He emphasized the program was voluntary and said its purpose was greater efficiency.

"The President thought it was a good idea," young Roosevelt said, "to set up some kind of a system whereby the agency heads would have access once a week to some one in the White House to tell what they had on their minds."

The other purpose of his new job, he said, will be to compose differences between various agencies and give pertinent information to each on what the others are doing.

The younger Roosevelt explained the mechanics of the plan at a luncheon for heads of the agencies yesterday and reported they were "100 per cent for it." Each will have a half-hour each week to present his problems.

At 29—he will be 30 in about two months—James has put in five years as an insurance company executive and several months as head of a yeast corporation. He officially became a White House secretary last July 1.

He is six feet tall, but the President calls him "My little son, Jimmy."

Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $1,889,249,182.39; expenditures, $2,377,662,795.84, including $641,165,881.06 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $488,413,613.45; gross debt, $36,950,128,060.08, an increase of $2,865,351.35 over the previous day; gold assets, $12,792,952,780.56, including $1,261,449,681.15 of inactive gold.

Bid for Surrender Raised.

Shanghai, Oct. 22 (AP).—Japanese raised the bid to Chinese soldiers to surrender today—from $1,294229 to $1,47145 for each Chinese who will quit fighting. The new proposition was advanced in leaflets dropped from airplanes, apparently because the first offer received no response. In Chinese money, the ante was raised from one Chinese dollar to five.

IT'S ODD
But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Minneapolis—Statistics proved that lefthandedness has nothing to do with stuttering, and now Prof. Bryng Bryngleson shows it was all just another case of figures being able to prove anything.

He substituted case histories for statistics, in a three-year study at the University of Minnesota He found (1) three times as much

two handedness in stutterers as in non (2) Eight times as much shifting of handedness, that is, learning to use the other hand (3) Fifty-five per cent of non-stutterers are strictly "one sided' in sight and hand, against 12 per cent of stutterers

There are, his studies indicate, 50 per cent more left-handed boys than girls There are, too, about 50 per cent more male stutterers

The statistics, Prof Bryngleson thinks, slipped up because they were gathered by questionnaire Case histories gave more exact information than the questionnaires.

Flahive May Vote In Tannersville

A show cause order against the Board of Election Inspectors of the Tannersville, Greene county, election district, was argued before Justice Harry E. Schirick Wednesday in chambers, in the matter of placing the name of Clarence T. Flahive on the registry list of the Tannersville district.

Mr. Flahive, who is a member of the Montgomery Ward Co., Kingston store force, and who resides at 249 Washington avenue, this city, claimed Tannersville as his voting residence. The election inspectors refused to register him at Tannersville on the ground that his home was in Kingston.

After hearing testimony to the effect that Mr. Flahive had always voted at the Tannersville district Judge Schirick ordered the inspectors to place his name on the registry at that poll.

Howard Wilbur, Democratic county chairman of Greene county, appeared for Mr. Flahive; Leslie Smith and Paul Fromer, of Catskill, appeared in opposition.

Farmers Loath to Strike

Syracuse, Oct. 21 — Plans to bring into full play state and federal forces to improve the economic status of dairy farmers are being discussed here this week. The Board of Directors of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., largest dairy cooperative in the United States, met here Wednesday. The directors of the Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers' Bargaining Agency, Inc., are meeting in a closed session today. Asked about the possibility of a statewide milk strike by dairy farmers, a spokesman said that subject had been discussed by the Dairymen's League directors, "and that reports from all parts of the territory showed only a slight willingness among dairymen to enter into such a costly and sorrowful affair."

In addition, it is said to eliminate drafts and odors, and to end fogging and steaming of windshields and windows. It heats cars so thoroughly and evenly, the announcement says, that "you can drive in your shirt sleeves when it's zero outside."

NEWS OF THE WORLD ON WHEELS

The three new Hudsons for 1938, the roomiest and most luxurious cars ever announced by the Hudson Motor Car Company, are now on display at the show rooms of Peter A. Black, Clinton avenue at Main street.

"Featured rightly as the greatest value achievement in Hudson history, all three 1938 cars, from the first glance, reveal that it's bargain year in Hudson show rooms," Mr. Black declared. "Not only are the new Hudsons better looking, finer performing, more comfortable and economical, but they also offer greater luxury in a bigger package than ever before."

In describing the new cars, Mr. Black said: "The complete 1938 line consists of an eight cylinder car made on both 129 and 122-inch wheel bases, a Six on 122-inch wheel base, featuring the new 'Six Star' engine, and the new Hudson Terraplane on 117-inch wheelbase.

"On these three chassis Hudson places the roomiest bodies it has ever built, continuing the 55-inch front compartment width, an outstanding feature of 1937, and adding 2 inches more of interior body length by a re-design of the front compartment. These 2 inches are used to provide additional leg room in the rear compartment while retaining the same dimensions in the front as previously.

"All models carry a complete line of body styles and all bodies, with the exception of the convertible models are of steel construction—floor, sides, front, back and roof—with body and chassis united as a single solid structure in accordance with Hudson's well-known unit-engineering practice."

When there's doubt about whether a dress ornament or a piece of jewelry is appropriate it is best to leave it off.

ECONOMY OR PORK BAR'L

The only plea that has been made to the voters by the Democratic Party for voting Democratic candidates is that the Democratic Party ought to be allowed to spend more of the public money.

Is this an argument? Is it an indication of fitness to be entrusted with government? On the contrary it is the strongest kind of argument against the election of candidates for whom such plea is made.

The Democratic candidates are talking about the federal "gifts" that are being bestowed upon the "dear people" by a "benevolent" government. But the people know all about these "gifts". They find it out every day when they purchase meat, bread, clothing and household necessities.

Yet this is the essence of democracy nowadays. The Democratic Party offers no program to benefit the public. Practically the entire talk of the Democratic Party comes down to the proposition: "Let us spend more of your public money". It is the same cry as the national and state councils. Doesn't democracy see any further than the pork bar'l and the "dough bag". Apparently the Democrats are disgusted with the Republican county and city administration because they didn't engage in an orgy of spending.

The records of the Republican Board of Supervisors show that Ulster county has been placed in a very enviable financial position; has improved our highways equal to that of any other county of our wealth and has insisted on conducting county business on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The records of the city under Republican administration show the tax rate lowered, the necessary bond issues sold at a very advantageous rate and no necessary improvements and conditions overlooked.

It should be a simple matter in every election district of Ulster county to decide whether a "pork bar'l" shall be opened and taxes go higher or economy and sound financing be continued.

DOMESTICATED BEAUTY

People read with wondering incredulity that a charming young married woman of Matapan, Mass., after winning a national beauty contest and then successfully passing Hollywood film tests, declined a movie contract and went home to settle back into domestic life. There was the story, too, a few weeks ago, of a young eastern girl raised to national fame as "Miss America", in a contest at Atlantic City. She astonished and shocked the beauty exploiters by walking out on the show and going back to high school.

Can it be that comely young women are really beginning to come to their senses, learning to discern real values, and deciding that their best chance for happiness and success is in living normal lives among normal people? If so, couldn't something be done to keep Hollywood scouts, publicity agents, chamber of commerce officials and so on, from continuing their efforts to exploit feminine beauty? Too many young women have had their heads turned and their lives wrecked by a sudden plunge into easy money and short-lived fame.

SPEED

New possibilities for speed fiends are revealed by Dr. Gustav Egloff, research director for an oil company, addressing a meeting of engineers. Automobiles and airplanes will double their speed within ten years, he says. This will be made possible by better oils and new, synthetic gasolines that will be twice as combustible as fuels now used. There can be cruising speeds of 150 miles an hour for autos and 500 miles for airplanes.

When the time comes, the speed will probably not seem any faster than 60 miles on the road and 200 in the air seem now. But we shall not make such road speed on any type of road now existing. It will presuppose the development of a national system of super-highways by-passing or over-passing cities and towns, with grades and curves and connections all made smooth and gentle to a degree hardly imagined yet. On such highways, at such speeds, in the cars made for them, driving will probably seem much like present flying.

NEW JOB FOR EX-RULERS

The New York Times suggests that any day now we may hear that ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Doorn will visit England, inspecting health and educational conditions among the children of Great Britain's rural districts.

The idea has possibilities of application in our own country. Presidents, governors, mayors and other public officials retired by popular vote might go on tours of inspection of their successful opponents' domains. They could then ask pertinent and impertinent questions about taxes and budgets and garbage disposal and police protection. This would keep up public interest in such essential matters between elections and prevent citizens from forgetting, and so becoming indifferent to issues, policies, campaign promises, and all the rest.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LAXATIVES

BOILS AND CARBUNCLES

You may wonder what the difference is between a boil and a carbuncle. Your general impression is that a carbuncle is much larger than a boil and may perhaps be "different" because it has a number of "heads" and cores, and the boil has only one.

Another point that you may have in mind is that when an individual has boils or carbuncles his blood is so impure that it is "boiling" over and trying to get out of the body by way of the skin. Therefore the best treatment would be huge doses of Epsom salts to take the "poison" out of the system. Small doses of Epsom salts daily for a few days would be helpful in cleaning the intestine and to some extent the blood also.

As a matter of fact, however, there may be a poison in the system but the real trouble is just in the region of the boil or carbuncle itself. The boil is caused by an infection in the skin due to an organism that has come from the outside surface of the hair and followed down to the root of the hair in the skin.

When an infection gets into the body at any point the white corpuscles of the blood (the disease fighters) immediately go to the place where the infection has started and put a hard white wall of themselves and other cells around the infection point to wall the infection off from the rest of the body. Thus when you examine a boil you see a dark red centre, then a lighter red, and on the outside of the ring or circle is hard white tissue.

Naturally if the infection has a wall around it, and cannot get into the general circulation of the body, it comes up to the surface of the skin, the way the infection came down, that is by way of the hair itself. If the upper tissues are too tight the infection (pus) goes along the skin until it strikes "easier" places to come to the surface—other hair roots—and forms a number of yelow spots or heads—a carbuncle.

As the center breaks down forming pus, a yellow spot or "head" appears and the boil is then treated by heat (poultices) till it breaks, or may be opened by a wooden toothpick which has been dipped in carbolic acid.

A boil or carbuncle improperly treated can cause a general poisoning of the blood system by breaking down this "protecting" wall.

Chapter 17

S.O.S. To David

RICHARD'S eyes were less stormy, and a little of the amusement that always lurked there, had returned.

"I know, darling, but don't say it." He laid a finger against her lips that were still throbbing. "This is our hour—we can't undo it by saying how wrong it is . . . let's instead, make it so beautiful that we'll always remember its . . . beauty." He laughed that low laugh of his, that began way down in his throat. "Whoa, there, sweet . . . I can see you're beginning to think, and that's quite fatal."

His cure was sure-fire.

Nina had not been capable of consecutive speech or thought since he had first stood up and moved the backgammon table away. And this time when he freed her, she was so completely under his spell, that though she found words, it was as though she were hypnotized.

She laughed a laugh that seemed to come from a very far off.

". . . And I lay up in my bed and reasoned it all out so comfortably, that I didn't really love you. Oh, no! I even used arithmetic . . . on my fingers. . . ."

They laughed together.

". . . And when I sat at breakfast, and you came in all handsome and beautiful in that black dressing-gown of yours, with silver dragons on it, I said, 'Nina, my child, snap out of this schoolgirl crush of yours, will you?' . . . Imagine, darling, snap out of it . . . just like that!"

She tried to snap her fingers, but they wouldn't, and he kissed them instead, and Nina saw the end of her brief, lucid interval coming.

The next time it was Richard who found the words, telling her the little things he loved about her. . . .

". . . the way you lower your eyes and then look up again. The way you're blushing now—slowly. The way you use your hands . . . practical little hands, but inefficient looking, thank heaven . . . I love to watch your mouth when you talk."

Mad, heavy words . . . impossible not to listen to.

"I love—you, Richard. Everything."

Nina never knew what suddenly brought her back to reality, to a realization of what she was doing.

Perhaps he let go of her hand for a second; or paused too long in casting a spell over her with his words. At any rate she suddenly slipped away from his enchantment, and became her true self again.

She drew away.

"Wait, Darling Richard, wait. Please. This was our stolen hour, I know. I can't un-say any of the things I've told you, because they're true . . . But if we're to keep the memory of this beautiful . . . we must end it now, darling. Please understand." She was pale and shaking—near to tears. "I'm . . . I'm sick now . . . suddenly. If you kiss me once more I shall hate you, hate us both. Nobody can be blamed for having a thing like this overtake them . . . it's Destiny, or something, I suppose . . . But we'd be wicked, wicked to go on!"

And then she said it: "Honey . . ." and the tears came, now, enormous, individual ones, that welled up from a great unhappiness within her.

But Richard sought to calm her in the way he thought best, and it was a mistake. Her eyes blazed and she jerked away from him.

"Richard! I told you I'd hate us both, and oh, I do. I do-o-o." It ended in a sob.

And still he couldn't—wouldn't let her go.

And even with her new determination to do right, she found herself yielding to him . . . but then it was the end.

She was more afraid than ever. That kiss was the last kiss.

Terrified at herself . . . at Richard . . . at Life, she turned and ran out into the hall.

The dash up the two flights of stairs made her heart throb so that everything jumped before her eyes, in unison with its beats. Her lungs filled with air and she couldn't think how to let it out again.

It wasn't until she gained her room, and leaned back against the panel of the locked door, that she remembered to breathe.

'Come For Me Now'

"HELLO . . . hello . . . David? . . . Dear, dear, David, it's Nina. Did you mean what you said when we were lying on the coats in the station wagon? . . . Then you do still want me? Because, David, I need you, want you, in the most terrible sort of a way. If I sound strange, darling, it's because I'm excited. It came over me so—very—suddenly . . . It did you, too, you say? Then you can understand . . . David, come for me now, will you, darling? Did you hear me? Now. We'll go away somewhere and be married . . . What? No, I'm all right, darling. I just gave a little gasp, because I had forgotten to breathe . . ."

Nina put down the French phone that was really French, because she had brought it back from Paris with her and had had difficulty having it installed. It was painted the same soft green that was in her decorative color scheme, and as she looked at it now, she wished she had left it its original black. It looked slightly Broadway, she thought . . . and then laughed at herself; an unbalanced, flighty little laugh.

She began to concentrate on packing — sensibly — things that she would need; and with accomplishing the commonplace task she regained some of her common sense, as well.

She realized that she had sounded extremely hysterical, but she had also done the right thing.

Five minutes more with Richard, and . . . she shuddered at herself. And five minutes with him tomorrow, or the next day . . . or the next month . . . it would still be the same. Something irrevocable, like this marriage she was planning, that was the only way to put a stop to it.

But this marriage must go through. If David thought, for one instant, that she was ill, or hysterical, or tight . . . or anything, he would never take advantage of her condition, even to bring about something so very important to him. He was like that.

And when she thought of his dearness, and his gaiety, and his underlying fineness, she had the feeling of peace steal over her, that she had felt before.

"I have David." She would play fair with him. Just this one secret thing that she would fight to overcome . . . and after that, truth and honesty between them. They would be happy. They would!

There. Her bag was closed.

Now for her case with all the creams and lotions; she knew that David would be confounded by them and immensely amused. Richard had known the manufacturer's mark and most of their uses. He had stood in front of her bathroom dressing-table and said knowing, complimentary things about her being a living advertisement of their efficacy. Nina remembered how she had loved the shape of his sleek, dark head, as he stood under the bright daylight lamp . . . But no! That was part of her new rule, she must stop—remembering.

'Wait A Minute!'

SHE was putting on her black hat, with the two little green wings on either side, that matched the shade of her street dress, when she heard the bell ring, far below.

She slipped into her broadtail coat, grabbed up her two bags and ran down the stairs.

Richard was not in the living-room.

The backgammon table was there, the half-played game a poignant reminder . . . and the rumpled cushions on the sofa . . . but she took a deep breath, and opened the front door.

"David!"

"Nina . . . sweetheart!"

They clung to each other for a long moment.

"I have my bags—see? All ready, I am, David."

"But Angel . . . May I come in a minute? I must talk with you first. What is this, Nina? Do you really love me, darling? . . . I mean, you aren't doing something you'll regret? I want you with everything that's in me, you know that, but . . ."

She interrupted.

"Then that's all we need to know, David. I want you the same way. What does it matter how we . . ."

"It doesn't, if you're as sure as I am." And there was all heaven in his eyes.

She was so sincere in her need of him, that he felt it . . . the sincerity; and if he mistook her need of him, for love . . . it was as well that he did, Nina thought.

She told him, silently: "I won't let you down, David," . . . and she opened the door, again.

But it was not as simple as all that.

"Wait a minute!"

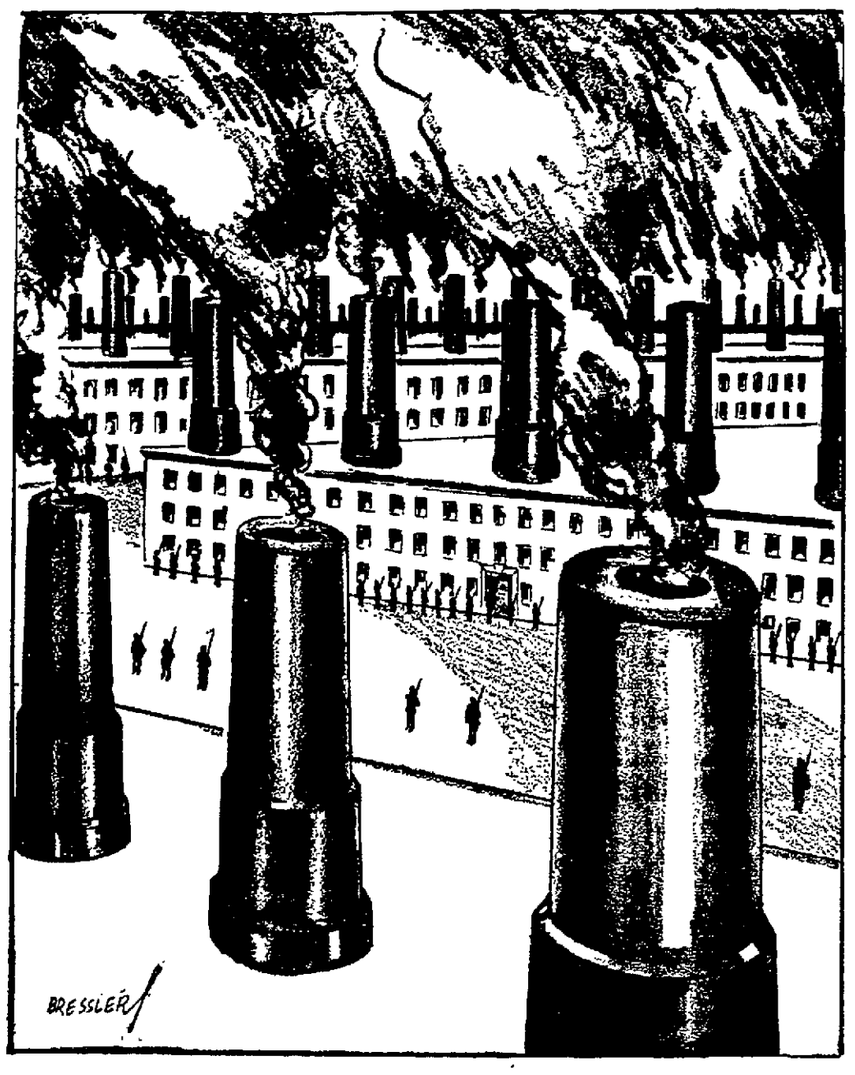

Richard's voice. Richard, himself, half-way down the stairs.

BABSON on BUSINESS

FRANCE—A LESSON FOR US

Babson Says France Not Now Headed For Revolution

Crossing the English Channel, October 22—Poor France — a frightened people with neither purpose nor goal. She is today a perfect example of what happens to an ease-loving nation. As democracy was born in France, it looks now as if democracy might die there. The freedom of which she has boasted during the past century and a half may bring about her death.

French people are honest, but lazy; thrifty, but stingy; while both the rich and poor love the easy way. They are brave when their own hearthstones are attacked; but forget that they can save themselves only as they save the other fellow. Their greatest wish is for security; but they fail to realize that security can be reached only through the path of sacrifice.

Does France Need a Dictator?

France is largely an agricultural nation. She has few industries. Her chief income is from the entertainment of tourists and the sale of luxuries. This income has greatly been reduced. The World Fair in 1937 has not been a success. Politics are very unsettled and purposeless. Although France technically "won the war", she lost it in an economic sense. Germany's refusal to pay reparations was the final blow. The continual efforts of her labor unions to shorten working hours and increase wages has resulted in decreasing production and undermining the franc.

France's flirtation with Italy during the latter's campaign in Ethiopia caused her to lose the confidence of England. Her only real allies are Russia, whom she despises, and the small Eastern and Balkan States, whom she holds only with bribes. France greatly needs a policy—and the courage to hold to it. It sometimes seems to me that only a dictator can save that unhappy country.

May Join Fascists

Both Germany and Italy, her nearest neighbors, do have a policy. They both know where they are going and are on the way. The best informed in France tell me that Spain will also be under a dictator before long. The Rebels are sure to win. Germany and France are now in a death struggle—with Germany getting stronger every day.

If Hitler and Mussolini continue in power a few more years, it looks as if France might naturally become a Fascist power. Certainly the defeatest attitude is seen everywhere. Those with money are sending it to England; those without money are refusing to raise children. All hate to pay taxes, feeling that it is like pouring money down a rat-hole.

Conservative or Radical?

Frenchmen say: "Why spend money on taxes; why make sacrifices to create armaments? England will take care of us. England cannot afford to let any unfriendly nation get control of us". That might prove to be true;; but it is a dangerous thing for France to count upon. I remember when Owen Young and General Dawes were in Paris, at a reparations conference "to save civilization". One evening a high French official took them out for the night to see the sights. Upon their return next morning they commented. "We wonder whether civilization is worth saving?" England may some day feel the same about France.

Furthermore, future inventions may soon make France of little value to England. In other words, England's security may become entirely independent of France. At any rate, England has officially notified France, Belgium, and her other neighbors that she now has no alliance and is under no obligation to any nation that does not fly the British flag.

Paris Not France

France has the reputation of being very socialistic and almost communistic. I think, however, that the people who believe this judge her by Paris, Lyons, and the other large cities which they visit. Paris is not France. Most every Frenchman already has a small patch of ground. All he wants is to be let alone. Ordinarily the French take little interest in politics. They have little confidence in their politicians and avoid in every possible way their citizenship duties.

Hence, when the wage workers of the cities are on the rampage, we think that France is headed for revolution. When, however, an emergency comes, the French farmers go to the polls and clean out these agitators. Today, in view of the tremendous havoc which revolution has wrought in Spain, these Frenchmen are even more determined to stamp out communism. I say this even though France has a mutual defense alliance with Russia.

Fight to the Finish

Without doubt France is slipping. She is frightened. She needs a great leader. But France is rich and can be very powerful, when once aroused. When the Germans began to retreat in 1919, France wanted to follow them to Berlin and "clean up the mess" once for all. President Wilson objected. Instead, he promised her a great sum of money, known as "Reparations". France has never been able to collect this money and has now seen Germany tear up the entire treaty.

France appreciates what we did to help her during the war; but she feels that the United States has taken sides with Germany ever since and has robbed her of her rightful victory. All this means as follows: France will do everything possible to prevent another conflict with Germany; but if it comes she will fight to the finish. The next World War will make the last look like a mere skirmish!

Postscript

Yesterday I talked with two prominent Japanese—a high military officer and a banker. I asked: "Why are you warring against the Chinese?" They answered: "We are fighting China to make her people our friends! We want to be friendly with them; but they refuse! We try to shake hands with them, but they will not shake. Hence, we must make them like us!" Can you beat that? Incidentally, Japan is very much disturbed by the talk of a general world boycott on her goods. The refusal by labor unions to handle Japanese exports and the refusal of women to buy Japanese products may be a factor in restoring peace and in teaching Japan a needed lesson!

MEET THE CANDIDATES

JAMES E. CONNELLY

Alderman James E. Connelly, who is representing the Ninth ward in the city's legislative body, has made such an enviable record during his term of office that he has been endorsed by the Democratic party and the Socialists, and is probably the first alderman in that ward on the Republican ticket who will face no opposition at the polls in November.

On December 1, 1934, upon the resignation of Alderman Charles A. Ringwald, Mayor Heiselman appointed Mr. Connelly to fill the vacancy. Immediately upon assuming office Alderman Connelly proceeded to familiarize himself with the duties of his office, and since then he has given his ward efficient representation in the council. Two years ago he was named to succeed himself and was elected by a large majority.

Alderman Connelly for over twenty years has been a resident of the Ninth ward, residing on West O'Reilly street. He has been a member of The Freeman's mechanical department for over thirty years, and over that long period he has proven one of the most efficient and able members of The Freeman staff.

HENRY E. KELSCH

With two years of experience as a member of the county's board of supervisors behind him Supervisor Henry F. Kelsch, who has so ably represented the Eighth ward during the past two years in the county legislature, is again the Republican candidate to succeed himself in the board.

Supervisor Kelsch, who resides at 50 West Pierpont street, is married and has two children. He has been a resident of the ward for nearly thirty years, and is now in the employ of the city.

When still a youth he became interested in local firemanic matters and is a member of Rapid Hose Company, serving that organization as financial secretary for the past eight years.

During the past two years he has ably represented the ward in the board of supervisors, and his record has been such that there is no question but that he will be returned on November 2 by an even larger majority than that given him two years ago.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—In the Times Square area are two vast news stands where are sold newspapers from every important city in the world.

These include all principal American cities and the European capitals, with especial emphasis being placed on English language papers from Shanghai and other Oriental ports.

New York being a cosmopolitan center, composed of people from every city, state, and nation in the world, it is an assured fact that if you stand near these stands for any length of time you will see a cross-section of the world pass in review.

Less publicized but equally true is the fact that plainclothes men and detectives keep a watchful eye on these stands. They scrutinize closely anyone purchasing a paper there, and their logic is simple. Criminals frequently give way to impulse or curiosity to see how much ado the "local" press is making over their activities. A fugitive, say, from Minneapolis is likely to ask for his hometown paper, and when he does a copper usually is ready to slip the irons on him.

THEN again, spies are sometimes detected in this way. There is one case on record where a rather harmless looking fellow was in the habit of buying a large number of papers every second Monday at one of these stands. Finally it became noted that he purchased coast papers only—that is, he bought Savannah, Miami, New Orleans, Galveston, San Diego, San Francisco, and Seattle papers. This, in effect, drew a "ring" around the United States.

Before making a move the authorities purchased these papers themselves and, in time, succeeded in breaking down a code in the classified advertisements. The purchaser was a spy and was receiving certain information in this way twice a month.

ANOTHER favorite ambush for detectives is the nightclubs. Plainclothes men frequent the "lush" late-hour places, aware that fugitives, with a lot of loose "scratch," break out now and then on spending sprees. More than one important capture has been made in the dusky glow of a nightclub.

I remember meeting a detective one night in a pre-repeal place near 52nd street.

"I've been here every night for two weeks," he said. "We're after a safe-cracker from Boston. He's a good-time guy and can't keep out of the gay spots for long. He'll come in one of these nights and when he does I'll put the irons on him."

They got him two nights later, during a private champagne supper, with one of his sweeties.

Sundown Stories

Headway

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I THOUGHT your sniffing was going to do the trick," Christopher Columbus Crow cawed to Rip.

"I thought your eyesight was so wonderful," returned Rip.

"If you only hadn't been so impatient," bleated Sweet Face.

"It's no use crying over spilt milk," cawed Christopher.

"Who has spilt any milk?" bleated Sweet Face.

"That's an expression, too," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow. "I thought you would know that, Sweet Face. You follow others. You say what others say."

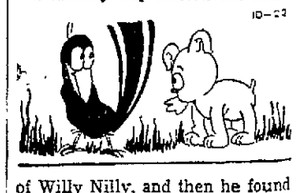

"I wouldn't talk to Sweet Face like that," barked Rip sternly. "After all, you are responsible for this delay."

Christopher knew this to be true, so he walked around, he flew overhead, and looked down on the ground, but still he could not find the note or the money wrapped in paper.

"Perhaps we had better go back and get more money and another note," suggested Sweet Face.

"That will mean even more of a delay," barked Rip. "And also a waste of money."

Suddenly Rip sniffed the scent of Willy Nilly, and then he found the note and the money in paper.

"You are a bad crow, Christopher," he said, before telling them what he had found.

"I know it, oh I know it," sighed Christopher.

"As long as you admit it," barked Rip, "I'll tell you I've just found everything."

"You bright, bright dog," cawed Christopher. "Now, owing to you, we can make some headway."

Heiselman Hits Statements Made By Judge Culloton

expended for those in distress and yet kept the tax rate lower:

	Spent in 1928	Spent in 1936	Increase
Hospital care	$9,400	$26,300	$16,700
Care in nursing homes	.....	11,800	11,800
Support of children	7,100	14,600	7,500
With pensions	3,550	7,000	3,450
Funerals	300	1,500	1,200
			$40,650

In categories of relief where we do receive financial reimbursements, let me make a few comparisons for you.

In 1927 home relief, which was then called outdoor relief, cost the city $6,900. This year, we put $65,000 in the budget for home relief and borrowed an additional $100,000.

In 1927 there was no old age relief.

This year we appropriated in the budget $98,000 for old age relief.

Yet we have been able to discharge all these responsibilities to those unemployed and in distress, and spend these large sums of money, and by using business methods in government we have still been able to improve other regular municipal services and reduce the tax rate.

That is something which my opponent, the city judge, cannot comprehend. It has him buffaloed. Because he cannot understand it, he is attempting to mislead the voters of making a false assertion. He claims we have been able to reduce taxes because we have received relief funds and use these funds to reduce the tax rate.

Let me prove how untrue and unreliable that charge is.

In the first place relief reimbursements must by law be used for relief purposes and they are so used.

In the second place, let me ask the judge exactly what federal relief funds had to do with the following reductions in the cost of a few of the functions of government that everyone is familiar with. Let me ask the judge if it wasn't good management on our part, and because of no connection with the federal government that we were able to improve municipal services and still cut off a large slice from the cost. Let's pick out a few items and show the judge where some of the taxpayers money was saved and how the tax-rate was reduced:

In 1928 the tax rate was $40.60. This year the tax rate is $37.96.

In 1928 it cost $16,200 for sewer maintenance.

We will spend this year only $8,600, a saving of $7,600.

In 1928 it cost $36,400 for street cleaning.

We will spend this year $24,200, a saving of $12,100, and the streets are cleaner in 1937 than they were in 1928.

In 1928 it cost $38,200 for ash removal.

It will cost this year $19,000, a saving of $19,200, and a better, more sanitary service.

In 1928 it cost $15,000 for garbage collections twice a week.

This year we will spend $9,700 for collections three times a week, at a saving of $5,300.

In 1928 it cost the same amount for street lighting that we pay now, but now we have 50 per cent more light on the streets of our city than we had then.

I realize that the city judge is not a financial expert, that he is not familiar with the costs or methods of municipal government. I do not expect him to be familiar with these matters. But I do think he should refrain from making inaccurate and misleading statements about subjects concerning which he is not familiar.

One of the reasons why our tax rates have been the lowest in 10 years is because, like good business men, we stay strictly within the amounts appropriated in the budget for each department. In fact we try to end the year with a few dollars in the treasury instead of running up a lot of bills which must be carried over to the next year.

For instance, the 1926 budget included a deficit of one department of $85,653.37 for the year of 1925.

The 1927 budget included a deficit in one department of $59,982.18 for the year 1926.

Instead of going into the red by these sizeable amounts, we stayed in the black, and instead of carrying deficits or shortages in the next year's budget we carried forward surpluses or balances. Our surpluses for 1934, 1935 and 1936 have been $25,000, $20,000 and $17,000.

If this is the best sample of a campaign issue which my opponent can display, I am compelled to state again that his case is as weak as dish water.

The citizens of this city have had ample evidence of what my administration has accomplished—that it has increased and improved municipal services, discharged its full responsibility for those in distress, reduced the tax rate, and maintained the credit and reputation of the city. From reports coming to me from men, women and children, in all walks of life, I am convinced that the people of Kingston are satisfied with my stewardship and want a continuation of the kind of clean, honest, humane and efficient government we have been trying to give.

John Cashin summarized the case last night in his speech when he said that the best tribute to our administration is that my opponent has been unable to discover any meritorious issue of principle or policy on which to wage a campaign. So there is no real campaign of issues or policies.

Mayor Heiselman in closing said that many had asked him why he did not get out more and mingle with the people during the day, and in reply had called attention to the fact that the people had elected him to have charge of the city government, and as long as he was mayor he was going to give his time and attention to the job without going out seeking votes. "I like to get out and meet the people," said the mayor, "but when you realize that every night it is 6 o'clock or later before I can leave my office at the city hall, and then likely have to return to the city hall for an evening meeting with some of the various departments you can readily see that I do not have much opportunity to get out and meet the people as I should like to do.

"I have tried to serve the people, all of the people irrespective of creed, color or political affiliation with honesty and fidelity and to the best of my ability, and if I am returned to office this November I expect to continue the same policy," said Mayor Heiselman who was heartily applauded by the large audience which had followed his speech with close attention.

Wicks Asks What Judge Would Do As City's Mayor

"What would the city judge do if he was mayor? We know what Mayor Heiselman has accomplished in giving the city sound and honest government during the past four years," said Senator Arthur H. Wicks speaking at the big rally of the Republican City Club held Thursday evening in the rooms on Broadway, near Thomas street. The senator said he was interested in the mayoralty campaign as a taxpayer, and he had carefully read all of the public utterances of both candidates for mayor As a result he knew what the mayor had accomplished but as yet he had failed to learn what the judge's stand, aside from criticism, was on any important municipal problem

"The people of Kingston know what Heiselman has accomplished in the past four years in giving the city more and better public service at lower cost to those who must foot the bills He has given us the lowest tax rates in ten years, but the residents of Kingston have yet to learn what the judge would do if he were mayor, or where he stood on any important problem that confronted the city."

It was true, said the senator, that the judge has spent considerable time criticising the school policy, but what I would like to know and what the voters would like to know is where was the judge when he was invited to attend a public hearing on the school question? He did not attend the first public hearing nor was he present at the second public hearing Where was he?

As leader of the Democratic party in the city and county, and as president of the Chamber of Commerce the records show that he was not interested in the school question or any other important municipal problem. The first time that he evinced interest in the school question was when he decided to run for mayor

As a candidate for mayor the voters have the right to expect the judge to state his position on public matters, but so far the judge has had nothing to offer except criticism

Democratic Policies

Fred Stang, the first speaker of the evening devoted his remarks to discussing the record made by the Democratic party in Ulster county when they had control of the board of supervisors in 1934 It was true that they had lowered the county tax in 1934, but that was not the whole story for in doing so they had failed to raise sufficient money to pay the bills against the county As a result when the Republicans regained control two years later they found that there were a large amount of unpaid bills, and that the surplus they had left in the county treasury had been spent by the Democratic board

The Democratic board in order to reduce the county tax when it was in control had done so by the simple expedient of failing to raise sufficient money to pay the operating costs of county government That was the story in a nutshell

Mr. Stang said that the Republican party had a right to feel proud of the accomplishments made in county affairs It had given the county the finest system of roads in the state "Ask any traveling man which county has the best roads?" he said, "and he will tell you Ulster. In addition to that Ulster county is one of the only two counties in the state that does not owe a nickel" He urged his hearers to elect Republican supervisors if they desired a continuance of good government.

In closing Mr Stang spoke briefly on the constitutional convention and said that Philip Elting, leader of the Republican party in Ulster county, was one of the candidates for delegate to the convention and urged that he be given a rousing majority in the city and county.

Mrs. Saltford Speaks

Mrs Belle Saltford, of Poughkeepsie, who is also a candidate for delegate to the constitutional convention, was introduced and given a rousing welcome. For years she has been interested in the work of Parent-Teachers' Associations, and at one time was head of the state association She has also been active in Girl Scout work and has served as a member of the Republican State Committee She spoke briefly on what the constitutional convention meant to the people of the state and urged that the majority of delegates to the convention be of Republican faith.

The rally last evening was in charge of the Republican women, and there was a large representation of women present at the rally which was presided over by Mrs Mary Otto, vice-president of the Republican City Club

At the close of the speaking program Frank Oulton and his proteges gave a fine program of entertainment.

NEW TRAFFIC CODE

By Police Lieutenants PHINNEY and SIMPSON

Lieutenant James V. Simpson in the following safety article calls attention to the fact that more accidents occur on the road at night than during the day. He writes:

No driver shall drive any vehicle at a rate faster than 25 miles per hour, passed by the Common Council, April 4, 1937, approved by the Mayor, April 7, 1937.

Everyone agrees that unwarranted speed accounts for most of the increase in automobile fatalities, after all there are few times when it is necessary and few places where it is advisable to travel at the break neck clip at which many of us are inclined to travel today. It would suit us better to take a little more time getting places, thereby keeping our intended appointment rather than one with the doctor or the undertaker.

There is some contention that 25 miles per hour may be too fast for some conditions, while the same speed may not be too fast on certain streets, certainly 25 miles per hour is out of place, after dark or when pavements are wet or icy, or when you plow past intersecting streets or when you see children playing in or near the street, or when you round a curve or turn a corner and in the night time when there are 35 per cent more fatal accidents with fewer cars on the road than during day light hours, partly because drivers are temporarily blinded by the glare of oncoming lights and partly because of excessive speed.

1936 records shows that too many drivers still forget to slow down at sundown.

AIRPLANE VS. BATTLESHIP WORKOUT ON SUNDAY

New York, Oct 22 (AP)—The airplane versus battleship argument is going to get a practical workout Sunday.

A fleet of ten cruisers and sea going yachts and an equal number of planes, manned by sportsman-pilots, will take part in the test on Long Island Sound. Each plane will carry a dozen one-pound paperbag "bombs" of flour. Each boat will be equipped with a camera "gun."

The planes will bomb the boats as they zig-zag over a six mile course from Execution Light to Fort Schuyler. The photographic gunners on the boats will endeavor to catch the planes in vulnerable positions on their cross-hair lenses. Observers on each boat will determine whether the planes are so caught before they make a hit with the flour bombs.

The Federal Bureau of Air Commerce gave permission for the test.

Elimination Plan To Get Airing in November, Report

Although no definite date has been fixed for holding a public hearing on the city's petition to the public service commission asking that all railroad crossings in the city be eliminated it is expected that the state board will likely fix a date in November for holding such a hearing. When the date is fixed the city authorities and the railroad will be notified of the date set.

Plans to eliminate the Broadway crossing received renewed attention when three members of the fire department died after a fire truck struck a passenger train on the crossing last May, and the common council directed City Engineer James Norton to prepare plans and estimates for eliminating all of the railroad crossings in the city.

This the city engineer did, estimating the total cost of elimination at over four million dollars. The plans and estimates were forwarded to the state board at Albany last month. An alternate plan was also suggested by Alderman Zucca which was approved to the effect that if the cost of eliminating all of the railroad crossings was such that the work could not be done at this time that the wiping out of the crossings of the former Ulster & Delaware railroad in the city be deferred.

Calling cards should be in white or cream color.

the nine-power conference on the Chinese-Japanese situation.

The spokesman said the cabinet council is not expected to decide whether Japan will attend the October 30 meeting at Brussels until next Tuesday, after which imperial sanction must be obtained.

"We certainly do not have time to administer all this business," he said, also declaring the Japanese government "is greatly mystified by the lateness of this invitation since it is understood other signatories received theirs long before."

Japan received its invitation to the conference yesterday. There were indications that Tokyo is attempting to learn the attitude of Germany and Italy before making a final decision.

The foreign office source said that Mamoru Shigemitsu, ambassador to Moscow, had gone to Berlin and that Viscount Kimotomo Mushakopi, ambassodore to Germany, had left Berlin for Paris en route to Rome. (Italy has accepted an invitation to the nine-power meeting.)

He admitted they "may confer" regarding the conference of signatories of the nine-power treaty, which guaranteed the integrity of China.

Can't Send Envoy.

The foreign office source said Japan certainly could not send an envoy from Tokyo to Brussels in time for the conference.

Asked whether Japan will participate in the meeting, the spokesman said "We can not run counter to the sentiment of the people. You know what that is."

A number of official and unofficial delegations recently have presented resolutions protesting against any Japanese participation in the conference. However, some sources say the German and Italian attitudes will condition Japan's answer.

Meanwhile, in north China General Han Fu-Chu, Shantung province governor, was reported moving 70,000 troops across the Japanese army's path.

U. S. May Revise Profits Measure

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Congressional tax experts said today they are considering revising the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes, targets of complaints from business men and persons worried about the recent stock market slump.

Chairman Vinson (D., Ky.) of the House Ways and Means Tax Subcommittee told reporters.

"As we are going to give the fullest and most careful consideration to the question of retaining, repealing or revising the capital gains tax."

He has favored making repairs on the tax on undistributed corporation profits, chiefly to soften its impact on corporations handicapped by deficits or debts.

Although the subcommittee will not meet until November 4 to consider general revision of the tax system, Rep. Crowther (R., N. Y.), a member already has returned primarily to determine what might be done about the capital gains and undistributed profits taxes.

Some of the complaints against the latter are that it imposes too heavy a burden on corporations required to retain earnings to pay off debts and on those desiring to make plant improvements or expansions.

2 Alleged Spies Held.

Moscow, Oct. 22 (AP).—Two alleged spies were held today for trial by a military court at Leningrad after an investigation which authorities said linked them with a "foreign diplomatic mission." Paul Zilberhorn, who formerly worked in Russia, and Irving Klein were accused of entering with fake Swiss passports.

Presbyterians Call Rev. E. A. Smeich

The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street on Thursday evening extended a unanimous call to the Rev. Earl A. Smeich, pastor of the Immanuel Presbyterian Church in Binghamton, to become pastor of the local church, which has been without a pastor since the resignation of the Rev. Goodrich Gates several months ago

The congregational meeting was largely attended. At 6:15 o'clock the ladies of the church served a covered dish supper and the congregational meeting which was called to take action on extending a call to a pastor was held at 8 o'clock. A rather unusual feature of the meeting was the fact that the Rev. Mr. Smeich was the unanimous choice of the congregation on the first ballot.

The Rev. Mr. Smeich preached as a candidate in the church in September, and made a decidedly favorable impression on all who heard him He is married and the father of a nine-year-old son.

The call to become pastor of the church has been forwarded to the Rev. Mr. Smeich, and if he accepts the call it is expected that he will assume the pastorate of the church about the first of December.

Weathervanes, Wooden Indians, Now Come Under Head of Art

He once ran with the wind.

One of a vanishing race.

They used to be useful—now they're art. At least, this weathervane and cigar store Indian are on view at the Downtown Gallery in New York City, among paintings and sculpture. Beside weathervanes and figures used for advertising, 18th and 19th century American craftsmen lavished their skill on ship figureheads, stove plate with sculpture in low relief, bird decoys, hitching posts and even toys. The Index of American Design, a federal art project, is making a pictorial record of these and other folk art creations.

DR. MANDELL SPOKE BEFORE TALMIDIM

Last evening the Talmidim met in Temple Emanuel. The presiding officer, Norman Rafalowsky, opened the meeting and after the minutes were read and the treasurer's report accepted, called for old and new business.

The pending matter of a library shelf was started on its way with an order given the secretary to purchase of a child's book named "The Burning Bush." This book will be given as a starter to the Kingston City Library and will be to the memory of the late Robert Greenwald. A suggestion to hold a party was received with approval and was turned over to the entertainment committee.

The play committee reported that it had decided to hold another show such as the last one sometime next year. In connection with this Rabbi Bloom offered a prize to the person in the club who writes a play good enough to be used in the show.

The meeting was then adjourned and the speaker of the evening, Dr. Harold Mandell, was introduced. Dr. Mandell had spent some time in Palestine and he gave a very interesting account of the "new Palestine." He told the club, much to its surprise, that Yiddish is not spoken in Palestine if the persons can speak either Arabic, Hebrew, or English

Almost everyone has a smattering of English and Arabic as the above three languages are the official languages of the country The club learned many things about the homeland. Telavin, Haifa, and Jerusalem are rapidly becoming modernized Palestine has electricity coming from a large hydro-electric plant on the upper Jordan that supplies the entire country, not such a great feat because Palestine is only about the size of Long Island.

When Dr. Mandell finished his talk the members of the club asked various questions about things they didn't understand The meeting then dispersed after finding out that the next gathering will be held at the home of Rabbi Bloom, 225 Main street.

Social Saturday.

There will be a social Saturday evening by the Willing Workers Club of Emanuel Baptist Church at the home of Mrs Ida Bayard, 51 Sycamore street. The public is cordially invited.

CHILD DIES FOLLOWING ACCIDENT WITH LOLLYPOP

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP)—A month ago Toni Lue Johnson, age two, was sucking on a lollypop and having a grand time at a game of tag with her sister, Carol, 9, and their friends in a school yard.

She couldn't run fast enough, so one of her playmates picked her up Then the friend stumbled and fell. The lollipop stick was forced into Toni Lue's throat, cutting a deep gash.

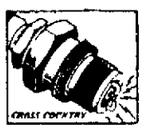

An infection developed, and last night she died.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—A rally in rails was generally ignored by other stock market leaders today and prices in most groups tilted backward.

Steels fell at the start in fast dealings that put the ticker tape 2 minutes in arrears. Losses of 1 to 2 points were halved, however, when the transportation division started to puff upgrade. Volume dwindled after noon.

The forward move was brief and even the railroads slipped from their best levels as buying support waned Near the final hour declines were well in the majority. Transfers were at the rate of about 2,100,000 shares.

Bonds started well, but became somewhat uneven when rail loans refused to emulate the steam-up of carrier equities. Commodities were also uneven and foreign markets erratic.

Favored for a time — some skidded into the minus column in the afternoon—were Louisville & Nashville, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Delaware & Hudson, Lackawana, Illinois Central, Norfolk & Western, New Haven, Lehigh, Nickel Plate, Colorado & Southern and Erie.

Inclined to give ground the greater part of the day were U. S. steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Republic, Inland Steel, Kenecott, Cerro de Pasco, Westinghouse, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, J I Case, Deere, American Smelting, Briggs Mfg., Loew's, Union Carbide, Radio Corp. and Zenith Radio.

Stocks Continued Rally Thursday

Despite profit taking stocks continued their rally Thursday, in wide and active trading, 3,640,000 shares being dealt in. All classes of stocks closed up for the day. On the Dow-Jones averages industrial stocks showed a gain of 0.92 point, to 135.48, as the market closed. Rails gained sharply, being up 2.38 for the day, to 35.03; utilities advanced 0.78, to 22.43. Corporate bonds were strong, the lower grade rails making the most noteworthy advances. London and Paris markets were strong. Amsterdam Bourse closed steady, but there was a sharp decline in prices later in street trading.

President Gay of the New York Stock Exchange urged cooperation of government, finance and industry in revival of the capital markets, saying that the nation is in more desperate need of having the channels of capital expansion opened than at any time since the World War. He emphasized the vital relationship between a liquid market and the flow of capital into productive industrial enterprise. Thin, inactive and weak markets, he contended, act to curb new flotations without which industrial progress is stifled.

The widespread investment demand as a result of the recent severe decline in stocks is reflected in the large volume of odd-lot buying. Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange odd-lot purchases exceeded sales by 575,214 shares. The odd-lot purchases accounted for 24.9 per cent of the Stock Exchange turnover Wednesday.

Unless there is a deepening of the moderate business depression of the past few months consumer buying outlook for the fall and winter season is good a nation-wide survey shows. Favorable indications are the sharp increase over last year in cash income for agriculture and the fact that employment among both production and white collar workers is holding up well. Two important exceptions to this are noted, however—steel and the textile and shoe industries in New England. Farm cash income this year is estimated at $1,000,000,000 over last year.

The U. S. Maritime Commission yesterday announced a scale of minimum wages for personnel on vessels receiving government subsidies. Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the commission, said that the new scale would not affect substantially the operating costs of the majority of the lines as the scale adopted is generally in effect on the Pacific coast and on most of the eastern seaboard lines.

In the fourth of a series of articles on building and construction, being published by the Wall Street Journal, it is stated that building costs, surging rapidly upward in the early part of this year, acted as a brake on the improvement in the construction industry. These rapidly rising costs have been made more effective by general unrest and economic uncertainty.

Business loans of New York city member banks declined $24,000,000 in week ended October 20—first drop since upward movement began in August; brokers loans declined $39,000,000.

Notables attend Warburg Funeral

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Attended by scores of notables, funeral services for Felix Warburg, international banker and philanthropist, who died of a heart attack Wednesday, were held today at Temple Emanuel.

Among those attending were Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, special rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, John D. Rockefeller, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Bernard Gimbel, Mrs. Vincent Astor, Nathan Straus, Marshall Field, 3rd, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Jules S. Bache, Dr. Cyrus Adler, Mrs. Otto S. Loeb, Charles S. Tupper Lake, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—Percy C. Wharton, 57, of East Islip, L. I., died in Mercy General Hospital today to write finis to a double tragedy six days ago when Wharton, Coroner S. Pope Brown said, killed his wife and shot himself.

WINDSORS INVITED TO MAKE NANTUCKET HOME

At least one Kingston man is greatly interested in the announcement in the Nantucket Inquirer and Mirror that a cabled invitation has been sent to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor to make Nantucket feel that their island, separated from the mainland of Massachusetts by some 30 miles of water will have an unusual appeal even to a couple as famous as the Windsors. They cabled "No place on earth offers the peace and happiness of Nantucket Island."

Nantucket has been the favorite vacation resort of Ralph D. Clearwater since 1909 and he reads its local paper, a nine-column wide sheet, religiously each week.

Appreciates News Stories on Church

Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer

October 21, 1937.

Editor, The Freeman:

On behalf of the members of our church I wish to express appreciation for the splendid manner in which your newspaper covered our recent rededicatory celebration.

The pictures your newspaper carried, the write-ups you gave and the space you alloted helped considerably to make our celebration a success. The general city-wide interest that was manifested in our celebration we feel was due in no small measure to your comprehensive publicity.

We know that not only our church but other churches as well receive complete coverage when holding special services. We are confident that the policy which your newspaper has established assists in the appeal which religion makes to the citizens of Kingston.

Sincerely yours,

RUSSELL S. GAENZLE.

Coal Prices Rise In November

Retail coal prices in Kingston are expected to advance 50 cents a ton the first of November on egg, stove, chestnut and pea sizes, but the price will remain unchanged on the better grades of buckwheat and rice. One of the large retail dealers called attention today to the fact that between April 1 and October 1 of this year coal had reached the lowest price in Kingston in 20 years, egg, stove and chestnut selling for $10 a ton delivered and pea coal selling for $8.50.

Several of the local dealers when asked this morning stated that it was expected that prices would advance the first of November as the wholesale prices had been advanced.

It is expected that the new price sale the first of the month will be $11 a ton for egg, stove and chestnut sizes and $8.60 for pea coal, while the better grade of buckwheat will continue to sell for $7.50 and rice size for $6.50.

Search Enters Third Day

Jamestown, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—The search for three-year-old Timothy Heer entered its third day today as investigators, inclined to the belief he drowned, ordered a diver to resume searching the bottom of Lake Chautauqua.

Boys Damage Gun Club Property

Boys are doing considerable damage to the property of the Ulster County Gun Club, just off the Plank road, according to Harold Osterhoudt, president of the club. Mr. Osterhoudt says that the boys have a bad practice of shooting at the padlock on the door, with .22 rifles, with the result that locks and windows are broken and other damage caused.

President Osterhoudt says that he does not want to take severe steps against the boys and suggests that the members of the club would be glad to have the boys come to the shooting range and practice while they are there, rather than frequent the premises while they are away and cause damage to the property.

Four Now Dead

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 22 (AP)—The death of George Mihelich, 42, early today raised to four the number of workmen killed when scaffolding in the St. Scholastica College chapel tower collapsed. Seven workmen fell 76 feet amid tons of concrete, twisted iron, and splintered planks as the scaffolding gave way yesterday.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Ben Blue is winner of a $10,000 gamble—and that's why he's in pictures today.

Ben Blue

After a score of years on the stage, wistful-eyed Ben came to Hollywood. He found a studio more interested in one of his dance routines than in him. His asking price for the routine was $10,000. He could have had it, too — not then but later when the picture people decided the price wasn't too steep after all. But Ben had thought it over, too.

"Tell you what," he said. "I'll give you the dance—if you'll give me a part in your picture."

Funny By Accident

Blue started in show business as a straight dancer. He came to be a comic by accident. Eighteen years ago he was doing a difficult Russian dance at a Los Angeles theater, and at the end of his fourth performance in one day he was exhausted. He staggered off stage, the audience howled.

But being funny in pictures—that's something else, says Ben.

"How can a thing be funny when it's done so many times to make one scene? If you think it's fun to take the same fall 18 or 20 times for as many rehearsals and takes, try it some time!"

Ducking Almost Fatal

In "Thrill of a Lifetime," on location at Malibu Lake, Blue was playing the skipper of a pleasure boat, and in one scene he put in a bit of impromptu business. He pushed the boat away from the pier, using a long pike pole and leaning against it from the boat so that he was stuck in mid-air over the water.

"Always good for a laugh, that one," says Ben. "But George Archainbaud, the director, suggested it would be even funnier if I sort of fell into the water."

Blue asked how deep the water was. They said 15 feet. Ben said he knew his clothes would shrink, said his make-up would be ruined, pleaded mastoid trouble—and after 20 minutes had talked the director out of that one.

"Then someone kicked the pole, I fell in and was almost drowned," he relates. "I hated to admit it, but I can't swim a stroke. Now on the stage—"

ATTRACTIONS At The Theatres PREVIEWED

Today

Broadway: "Charlie Chan on Broadway." The great Chan invades New York city in his latest adventure in murder and before he is through he exposes several rackets and gets his man. With Warner Oland in the starring role and supported by Keye Luke, J. Edward Bromberg, Joan Marsh and Donald Woods, this 20th Century-Fox thriller is spicy entertainment. Others in the cast include Douglas Fowley, Harold Huber and Louise Henry.

Kingston: "Back in Circulation." Life behind the newspaper headlines seems to be an existence of trickery, intrigue and thrills according to this latest Warner Brothers picturization of newspaper life. It gallops from thrill to thrill and the plot encompasses such details as scoops, murders, romance and brilliant reporting. The screen adaptation is from an Adela Rogers St. John story and Ray Enright directed. The cast includes Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell and Margaret Lindsay. Here is a fast and furious bit of entertainment, a little overdrown, but acted and staged with conviction and interest.

Orpheum: "Shiek Steps Out" and "Come On Cowboy." Ramon Novarro, after a long screen absence, returns to the motion picture in a story of blazing desert sands and of a handsome sheik who rescues fair damsels in distress. Romance rather than action is predominate in this offering. "Come On Cowboy" is the other attraction, a western melodrama of bravery and bullets with Bob Livington.

Tomorrow

Broadway: "Stage Door." A real dramatic treat is to be seen at the Broadway in this screen adaptation of the stage success and the entire production is a smooth and realistic commentary on those girls who seek fame behind the footlights. All the heartache, the failure, the dreams and hopes that go into the making of a stage career are brought out with startling effect in this film and the work of Katherine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers and Adolphe Menjou leaves little to be desired. Gregory LaCava directed this RKO-Radio picture and accessory players include Gail Patrick, Constance Collier and Andrea Leeds.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: Same.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

(The Moss Feature Syndicate, Greensboro, N. C.)

The late Thomas A. Edison was showing a party of friends over his beautiful summer residence, equipped with many labor-saving devices. One exception, however, was a turnstile so stiff that it required considerable strength to force a passage.

One by one his guests pushed through. At length one of them ventured to say, "Mr. Edison, why do you have everything so perfect except this awful turnstile?"

"Ah!" replied the host, his eyes twinkling. "Everybody who pushes that turnstile around, pumps eight gallons of water into the tank on my roof."

At breakfast one morning the town bachelor noticed some handwriting on one of his three-minute eggs. Examining it closely he made out the following message: "This egg was packed by a girl who is prepared to marry the man who notices this message. She is said to be the prettiest girl in this neighborhood."

He wrote: "I would like to correspond with you—object matrimony."

Several days later he received a reply: "I am flattered by your offer, but I am now married and have three children."

The Better Things

There's beauty all about us here,
And he is wise who finds it;
There's ugliness that can't be helped—
Let's pass it by don't mind it!

Matthew—Where are you going with the little shovel?

Michael—Going to bury my past.

Matthew—Man, you need a steam shovel.

There is, just now, quite an argument on among those who study the brain and nerves, about worry. Surprising as it may seem, there are high authorities upon the subject who say a certain amount of worry is a good thing. This depends upon what is understood by worry. It it is a mere nervous anxiety it is bad. If it is more or less calm effort to figure out one's troubles and seek to find a remedy it is of course a good thing.

A dear old lady had returned from her first visit to France. "What impressed you most?" she was asked.

"Well," she replied, after a moment or two's thought, "I think it was the French pheasants singing the mayonnaise."

A friend of ours believes it is perfectly all right for the government to spend a million dollars before breakfast, but thinks it is a terrible squander of money for the city board to spend $3,000 over a period of years for graveling the streets.

Sailor—We just dropped our anchor, lady.

Lady—I though you would. It's been dangling outside for some time.

They were entertaining friends in their new house. Suddenly one of the guests sat up and listened.

"Surely you are not troubled by mice already?" she said.

"That's not mice," replied the householder. "That's the people next door eating celery."

Now fellows a better way to prepare for the morrow:

All of us are always going to do better tomorrow, and we would, too if only we started today.

Five-year old Billy was talking to his Aunt Mary. She said, "Well, Billy, I suppose you'll start to school next year."

"Oh, no, auntie," replied the boy. "What would I do in school? I can't even read or write."

Visitor—Does your father ever preach the same sermon twice?

Minister's Son—Sure he does, but nobody notices it 'cause he hollers in different places.

In everyone's life there's more prose than poetry.

Drennan Case for Reeves Death Goes To Jury at 1:18 p.m.

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct 22 (AP).—A jury of 11 men and one woman began at 1.18 p. m. (E. S. T.) today to deliberate the fate of 20-year-old Margaret Drennan for shooting to death the alleged father of her unborn child

Before leaving the courtroom the jury was admonished by Judge Adrian Lyon to resist any tendency to rely on "unwritten law".

"The so-called unwritten law whereby one kills another to avenge her honor has no recognition in the courts of New Jersey," he said. "There is always," he added, "a psychology which has a tendency to bring into cases of this kind that unwritten law."

"Sentiment, sex complexes or sympathy," he declared, must not enter into the deliberations.

Charging the fatal shoting of Paul Reeves was "absolute cold-blooded murder", the state told the jury trying pretty Margaret Drennan there was "only one verdict you can bring in"

"That is guilty of murder in the first degree."

In closing his summation with this plea, Prosecutor Charles M Morris made no mention of the death penalty. But such a verdict, without a recommendation for mercy from the jury, would carry with it automatically a sentence of death in the electric chair.

Counsel for the 20-year-old secretarial school student earlier pleaded for acquittal declaring Miss Drennan, an expectant mother, would "be punished enough when she has to hold her child in her arms and possibly look down into the living features of the man she had to kill."

Defense Attorney George L. Burton pictured the defendant as an innocent girl who was "taken in" by Reeves and who had no choice but to shoot him

Ross's Capture Chicago Gang's Work, Police Say

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP).—Discovery of a ransom note intensified the search for Charles S. Ross and his abductors today and led investigators to believe the kidnaping was the work of a Chicago gang.

Federal agents focused their nation-wide search on the Chicago area when Mrs. Clara Ludwig, 41, a railroad freight office clerk, found she possessed a $10 bill which was part of the $50,000 ransom.

It was believed the first tangible evidence that the ransom money was in circulation.

Mrs. Ludwig reported she received the bill from Florence Giaquinto, 20, a roomer at her home. The latter said she received it from William J. Wernecke, an insurance collector. Yesterday preparatory to a shopping trip Mrs. Ludwig checked the note against the ransom list and found it was one of the ransom bills.

Federal agents immediately questioned Wernecke at his home and then accompanied him on an automobile tour which presumably took them to policy holders on the collector's route They declined to comment on their progress.

Federal agents sought to encourage close inspection of $5, $10 and $20 notes by explaining the government would exchange all ransom bills found. Lists of the serial numbers of the 5,250 ransom bills were distributed Tuesday

The fate of the 72-year-old victim remained a mystery. Ross, a retired manufacturer, was seized from his car the night of September 25 on a highway 15 miles west of the city.

Investigators have expressed the opinion Ross died of shock or was slain by his abductors. He was in frail health.

Police investigated a possible link between an automobile seized on the south side yesterday and the kidnaping case. The automobile was found in a private garage and contained a rifle, a sawed-off shotgun, seven boxes of cartridges, two pairs of goggles, and three masks.

HAHN TRIAL CONTINUES, NEW TESTIMONY ADDED

Cincinnati, Oct. 22 (AP) — The prosecution of Anna Marie Hahn on a charge of murdering 78-year-old Jacob Wagner won the right today to present testimony concerning the deaths of a number of other aged men it charges were victims of slayings for gain.

Common Pleas Judge Charles S. Bell's decision came after a day of arguments by rival attorneys and after Prosecutor Dudley M. Outcalt declared that the state's evidence was complete in Wagner's death, which he said was accomplished by poisoning.

The prosecutor said that as a result of the ruling, he had many more witnesses to be heard.

Rev. Mr. Swartz Preaches Sunday

The Rev. William C. Swartz, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Pleasant Valley, will occupy the pulpit of the Rondout Presbyterian Church on Sunday. Back of that fact lies a promise made by the Rev. James N. Armstrong, Jr., pastor of the local church, to the young people of the church who attended the Presbytery's conference at Camp Sloane the past summer. At that time Mr. Armstrong promised that the church would have as its guest pastor on a Sunday morning the minister they wished to invite. The Rev. Mr. Swartz was their choice and he was invited to preach here Sunday and accepted.

The Rev. Mr. Swartz has been pastor of the Pleasant Valley Church for the past six years. He was born in Poughkeepsie, the son of the Rev. William P. Swartz, Ph. D., who was then pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Poughkeepsie. He is married and the father of two sons. His wife is a former Poughkeepsie girl. During the past month he was appointed chairman of the North River Presbytery's committee of Christian education.

His sermon to the juniors Sunday morning will be on the topic of "Taming Scared Cats," while the senior sermon topic will be "Power in Christianity."

Wilkins To Leave For Arctic Today To Seek Russians

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Sir Hubert Wilkins, the goateed explorer, will leave for the Arctic today with a twofold purpose: To seek six missing Russian fliers and to explore further into the possibility of controlling the price of silk stockings.

The stocking business seems to be hooked up in some way with long-range weather forecasting.

"Whenever I am asked why I go into the polar regions," said Sir Hubert, resting an elbow on the wing of his silvered airplane, "I always say, to find out how I can prevent fluctuations in the price of women's stockings

"The present trip, of course, is being made to find Sigismund Levanevsky and his fellow aviators, but incidentally I expect to find out more about the weather."

In a nutshell, the theory is that the weather for 1960 can be forecast probably in 1950, thereby enabling silk worm owners to determine in advance how many mulberry leaves will be available for consumption by their herds.

Weather Stations

"Meteorological stations are being established in the Arctic and Antarctic for long-range weather studies," Sir Hubert explained "It will take 15 years to arrive at any conclusions We know that terrestial conditions of air mass movements have definite effects on seasonal conditions

"If the movements can be traced—and we know that air masses follow channels just as the Gulf Stream follows one—we have made a start toward long-range forecasting We must find the cause of them, of course We know the effect'

Sir Hubert is commander of an airplane purchased by the Russian government to hunt for Levanevsky and five other men lost last August during a flight from Moscow to California With the explorer will be Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, the Canadian flier, S A Cheesman, co-pilot, and A Dyne, mechanic

Yonkers Eleven Coming Sunday To Play Jackets

At a meeting of the Yellow Jackets, Thursday, Trainer Gus Steigerwald announced a change in the schedule for Sunday as far as opposition is concerned. The Yonkers Brown Bombers, instead of the Tremont Rams, will be at the Kingston Fair Grounds to duel with the Wasps.

Although disappointed at first, the Jackets heartily sanctioned the change when it was announced that a scout from the Millett booking agency would be here with the Bombers with intention of looking over the Jackets for the purpose of recommending them for a game in Albany.

In his message to Trainer Steigerwald, Millett stated that he considered the Yellow Jackets a formidable club, worthy of coping with real grid opposition. He promised the Wasps a heavy guarantee for the capital city trip, if they get by the Bombers.

Anxious for the Albany game, the Jackets will play their best ball, and hope it will meet with the approval of the scout from the metropolis.

Concerning the Bombers, Millett's message was: "The Yonkers Brown Bombers have a splendid team, well balanced and are capable of mixing it with any of the semi-pro clubs. They'll treat the Kingston fans to plenty of good clean football and give the Wasps a tough test".

Last night the Yellow Jackets manifested plenty of spirit for their clash with the Bombers, and their attitude presages a hotly fought grid war. Starting time Sunday is 2:30 p. m.

Upstate Elevens Are Ready to Make Football History

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP).—Here in their own Chenango valley, Colgate's once-mighty Red Raiders are ready to make football history.

In the throes of one of the worst seasons an Andy Kerr-coached eleven has ever had, the Raiders will play host tomorrow to still-mighty Duke in the Chenango's first outstanding intersectional battle.

Never beaten on home grounds since Kerr took over the coaching assignment, Colgate must win tomorrow to keep its record intact. And, already beaten by Cornell and Tulane, it must win to capture its first major victory of the season.

Unbeaten Duke invades the Chenango with only a scoreless tie with Tennessee marring its record. Last week the Blue Devils scored a 20 to 19 victory over Georgia Tech, while Colgate was losing, 7 to 6, to Tulane at Buffalo.

Meanwhile, upstate New York's other two major elevens—Cornell and unbeaten Syracuse—enjoy out-of-state jaunts, Cornell to the Yale bowl to face the Bulldogs and Syracuse to Baltimore, Md., for an intersectional clash with Maryland.

Upset by Syracuse at Ithaca last Saturday, the Big Red of Cornell is far from the acknowledged second against Yale. Many experts feel that the Syracuse defeat has served to sharpen Cornell's reborn grid sense and predict a close game at New Haven.

Syracuse, and its star Olympic running back, Marty Glickman, is the choice over Maryland in a game that features that section of the country.

Alfred's unbeaten-high-scoring Night Owls goes after their fifth straight victory of the season tomorrow night against Kenyon on its home grounds and under the lights.

In eastern New York, a traditional clash between Union's flashy eleven and a disappointing R. P. I. team features the schedule. The game will be played at Schenectady.

Down the Field By Mun—

Football Guesses on Games Scheduled for Tomorrow

By HERBERT W. BARKER

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—On the theory that you can't hit a man when he's down this corner ventures the following football guesses from a strictly horizontal position:

California-Southern California: There's no Helen (or is there?) to inspire the men of Troy, but a hare-legged lad named Ambrose Schindler seems to be answering the same purpose. The Trojans will be dangerous from start to finish but we've ridden on the California band-wagon for so long now that it's a habit. California.

Yale-Cornell: Rhyme, and its boy-friend, reason, say there's no excuse for picking anybody but undefeated, untied Yale, nevertheless the hunch here is that the Ithacans will come roaring back from that Syracuse defeat and upset the Eli applecart. Cornell.

Vanderbilt - Louisiana State: There they are, both undefeated, both untied and both tough. We'll take out the coin, call heads and ... Louisiana it is.

Ohio State-Northwestern: If they all were like this one the paper-doll manufacturing industry soon would have a new recruit. The queestion before the house is: "Why did Ohio State take that layoff last week unless it was to get ready for this?" There being no answer, the ballot is cast for the Ohios.

Texas A. and M.-Baylor: We'll take Baylor.

Fordham - Texas Christian: There's nothing wrong with Fordham's defense and now that Pitt has escaped from the Polo Grounds maybe the Rams will try to score a point or two. It'll be close but Fordham's the college.

Harvard - Dartmouth: Another clash of unbeaten arrays with little or nothing to choose between them. Dartmouth.

Colgate-Duke: Duke looks too good for the red, or pink, raiders.

Princeton-Rutgers: Unbeaten, untied, unscored on Rutgers may make this close, but that should be all. Princeton.

New York University-Lafayette: Ditto undefeated, untied, unscored on Lafayette. N.Y.U.

George Washington-Alabama: Where do all these undefeated teams come from? Alabama.

Army-Washington Univ.: Looks safe for Army.

Columbia-Brown: Brown out-Luckman-ed. Columbia.

Notre-Dame-Navy: If the fighting Irish transfer some of their fight from midfield to the goal line they might win this one. With arm upraised for a fair catch. Notre Dame.

North Carolina - Tulane: Another even-Stephen affair. We'll take Tulane and hope for the best.

Kentucky-Manhattan: One of New York's home clubs wanders far off its customary base. For that reason alone, Kentucky gets the nod.

St. Louis—George Zaharias, 237, Pueblo, Col., threw Pete Petersen, 219, New York, 19:42.

Scholastic Cry An Aged Affair

Denver, Oct. 22 (AP)—Princeton and Rutgers would have played a "rubber" game that season of 1869—Princeton players were all for it—but the faculty put its foot down.

"What do you think they told us?" 89-year-old Homer D. Boughner asked today. "They told us we were taking too much time for football at the expense of our studies."

So the scholastic cry really dates from that very first recorded American intercollegiate football game. But outside of that, says Boughner, you'd hardly recognize the game of yore.

Rutgers won 6 to 4. Princeton triumphed in a return engagement a few days later, 6 to 0. There was strong agitation for a playoff, but the Princeton faculty stepped in with its history-making decision.

No Cut for the Colonials Yet

Although Frank Morgenweck is overloaded with Colonial basketball material he will not make any cut in the squad until after next Wednesday's game with the Renaissance quintet, he announced late yesterday.

"Some of the boys haven't had an opportunity to show their stuff under fire," he said. "There's Sammy Stein, too, whom I haven't even used.

"By next Wednesday I should have a fair idea of my squad. The Rens should make a good test club."

Sunday the Colonials will play an exhibition game in the Bronx against the Kavanaughs, a strong independent quintet.

DETTON WILL WRESTLE INDIAN IN ALBANY

Dean Detton, who won and lost the heavyweight wrestling championship during the past year, returns to Albany Tuesday night, October 26, for a main bout with Chief Thunderbird, sensational Indian, at Tenth Infantry armory.

Detton, always a favorite with Albany fans because of his clean style of grappling, has turned caveman during the past six months, and it will be interesting to see how the fans react to this change in their idol. Loss of the championship is said to have changed Detton.

Mike Mazurki, Cohoes, and Dr. Fred Myers, Cambridge, Mass., meet in the semi final, while Bob Managoff, Chicago, clashes with Bob Russell, Wisconsin, and Pat Meehan, Ireland, takes on Scotty McDougall, Toronto veteran, in the 30 minute affairs.

The main event will be put on shortly after 9 o'clock again this week, with the semi final closing the show.

Saturday Will Be Test Day for Many Unbeaten Elevens

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Football's grab bag extends a gaping mouth to prospective sectional leaders Saturday with such enticing bait as conference championships and intersectional prestige luring the leather-helmeted operatives.

It is the testing day for many of the unbeaten, notably Yale, Baylor, Fordham, Dartmouth, L. S. U., Northwestern and California.

The latter team faces its stiffest assignment to date, a meeting with Southern California's Trojans. With Quarterback Ambrose Schindler on hand the Bears will know soon after the kickoff that they are playing a ball game.

Backing up this traditional battle on the coast are such fine pairings as Washington and Stanford, the coast's most recent Rose Bowl representatives, U. C. L. A. and Washington State and Oregon and Oregon State.

The southwest boasts three tidy games with Baylor's onslaught against a powerful Texas A. and M. team topping the list. Baylor has devastated Southwestern, Oklahoma City, Arkansas and Centenary but Texas A. and M., tied by Texas Christian last week, is one of the nation's better elevens.

Texas Christian, another stalwart of the area, moves to New York to unveil Davie O'Brien, Sammy Baugh's successor as the southwest's premiere pass pitcher, against Fordham.

The latter encounter is the chief intersectional threat in a sector dotted with games reeking with tradition. Yale and Cornell, who opened hostilities in 1889, meet at New Haven with the big Red on the rebound from the Syracuse fiasco.

Yale's team of opportunists, led by Clint Frank, promises to make this one interesting, but not more so than the Harvard-Dartmouth clash at Boston, another ivy-entwined rivalry.

On the intersectional side in the East are George Washington and unbeaten Alabama at Washington, Colgate and Duke's powerfilled squad at Hamilton, Pittsburgh and Wisconsin in the Panthers' lair, and Maryland and Syracuse at Baltimore.

Ohio State and Northwestern, a game with a strong bearing on the Big Ten title, shares midwestern honors with the Navy-Notre Dame battle at South Bend. Iowa and Michigan, Marquette and Michigan State, and Missouri and Nebraska also bid for national attention in the mid-west.

L. S. U. and Vanderbilt, two unbeaten paladins of the Southeastern Conference, clash at Nashville in a southern standout. Georgia Tech and Auburn, and North Carolina and Tulane, also meet on the southern front, while Manhattan adds an intersectional flavor by invading Lexington for a bout with Kentucky.

Edgar Allan Poe paid a Boston printer to print his first book, "Tamerlane and Other Poems". Now it brings $15,000 to $20,000 in the book market.

Champion Furlin Meets Viscio Hard Puncher Tonight

This is fight night in Kingston and the Municipal Auditorium is expected to be jammed with fans of the fisticuff sport to see some of the hardest punchers in the amateur ranks belt away at each other.

Topping the bill is the five rounder between Joe Furlin, middleweight slugger from Middletown who holds the championship in his class in New York state, and Tony Viscio, Albany southpaw, who put the skids under Wildman Eddie Steele from Poughkeepsie in 56 seconds.

This pairing brings out a seasoned veteran of the ring, Furlin, against a youngster who has been battling less than two years, but who has a string of victories to his credit, mostly knockouts. Viscio is rated among the most vicious punchers in the leather slinging pastime, amateurs or professionals.

Furlin has met them all in his years of competition and counts on taking Tony into camp, despite his hitting power and his southpaw style, which puzzles the ordinary fighter.

Another dynamite slinger will be presented in the person of Sergeant Perry of the West Point Cavalry, who is matched with Freddie Smith, one of the George Gainfords, white heavyweights from New York city.

Perry has not appeared in Kingston since his memorable battles with Johnny Bileski, the Pounding Pole from Scotia, over whom he holds three wins.

Buddy Emerson, the local lightweight, who has the Indian sign on Joe Triola, is in for a real test when he tangles with Carmen Nemen, the New York blonde who spotted Billy Pelez a considerable weight advantage and trimmed him in impressive style.

Another five rounder will be added to replace the Coyle-Smith match. Charley Forezzi, the Albany boy on the comeback road, probably will be featured against a New York opponent.

Red Van Alstyne, the Ravena socker, will trade leather with Pete Margo, of New York, in five stanzas.

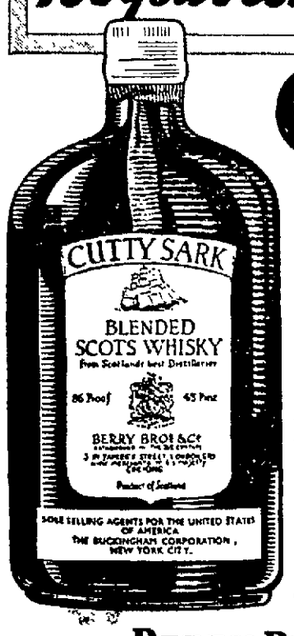

Three local boys will show also. Irv Van Kleeck, Kingston featherweight, will box Johnny DuBlase, Albany boxing star.

Joe Tantillo, Highland Hurricane, is paired with Ozzie Black, of Albany.

Frank Fabbi, Kingston 150 pounder, will do a return engagement with Johnny Puglise, of Albany.

Starting time is 9 o'clock.

Kingston High Gridders In Good Spirit for Middies

Long workouts were held every day this week, by the Kingston High School football squad, in preparation for Saturday's contest at the Kingston Fair Grounds with Middletown.

"The boys haven't reached their peak," said Coach G. Warren Kias after yesterday's drill, "but their spirit is good, which means something."

The Maroon squad has been putting plenty of zest and zip into its workouts, because a win Saturday would mean a lot in the race for that Duso Football League title. And, the boys don't mind working right up until darkness envelops the field.

In yesterday's workout, Coach Kias used his Poughkeepsie starters against the junior varsity, with the latter brigade employing Middletown formations.

Bronx Quintet Gets American Loop Franchise

Boston Bees Make Bush a Nice Offer

Minneapolis, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Boston team of the National League held forth it managerial reins today to Donie Bush, popular leader of the Minneapolis baseball club of the American Association.

Bush promised a decision today as to whether he would accept what he called a "flattering offer" from Bob Quinn, president of the Bees, or remain with the Minneapolis Millers.

Bush and Mike Kelley, owner of the Millers, held a long conference here yesterday. Kelley said Donie could manage the Millers for him as long as he (Kelley) owned the club, Minneapolis has won three pennants—in 1933, 1934 and 1935—during Bush's five years as manager. Before coming here Bush had managed Washington, Pittsburgh the Chicago White Sox and Cincinnati.

While Boston's terms were not not announced, it was reported here to be in excess of the $10,000 a year salary Bush has been drawing from the Millers.

"It is a temptation to return to the major leagues," said Bush, in discussing the Bees' offer. "But I have been so happy in Minneapolis that I want extra time in which to make up my mind."

Pete Caprotti Wins at Hudson

Pete, one of the trio of Caprotti brothers from the amateur boxing stable of Sammy Offerman, former west coast professional, was victorious in his battle with Willie Washington at the Knights of Columbus show in Hudson, Thursday night. The bout, Pete's first ring encounter, was well received by the patrons. Johnny Caprotti (Kid Chappie) and Jess Caprotti (Davey Hopp) dropped unpopular decisions to Tony Squillace of Amsterdam and Danny Williams of Hudson, respectively.

Cage League For City Quintet

A City Basketball League, similar to the softball loops conducted during the summer, is proposed by Sid Lutzin, director of recreation, and a meeting will be held for all interested, Thursday night, October 28, in the Y. M. C. A.

"Basketball is a popular sport", said Lutzin, "and the interest in the game should prompt a large number to attend the meeting, next Thursday".

At a special meeting of the American Professional Basketball League, held at the office of President John J. O'Brien, a franchise was granted to a syndicate of prominent Bronx sportsmen, who are to operate in the spacious Bronx Coliseum. This acquisition should prove of great value to the entire circuit, as not only will the new club play in one of the largest auditoriums in the United States, but it brings Greater New York to the fore as the hotbed of basketball, both professional and collegiate, in the entire country. In order to afford the Bronx promoters sufficient opportunity to enlist a formidable aggregation of players, comparable to any others in the league, waivers were obtained today on the following players: Posnack, of the Brooklyn Jewels; Kaplinsky and Bass, of the Celtics; Frankel, of the Jersey Reds, and Pilkington, under reserve to Kingston. In addition, Managers Bill Christiensen and John Dedrick have been appointed to give consideration to the securing of a number of stars who made prominent reputations in semi-professional activities throughout the east last year. These men are Lulu Bender, former captain of Columbia University, Gotkin, of St. John's, Heilwell, of the Newark Hebrews, Ryan and McNally, of Manhattan, Winograd of City College, and George Christiensen, of the Bronx Calanagh Club.

With the Kate Smith Original Celtics operating in the New York Hippodrome, and the Jewels holding forth in Arcadia Hall, Brooklyn, with the Visitations in Prospect Hall in the same borough, it now appears that the keenest brand of basketball is likely to be exemplified all during the season when these four local clubs clash, as the inter-borough rivalry cannot help but be an additional spur to all players concerned.

Probably the most famous college team of all time has reached the point of a decided change in the personnel after practically 10 years of operation. The Jewels, organized in 1931, after the completion of four years' association at St. John's in Brooklyn, is being broken up by Manager Eddie Wilde. Allie Schuckman has been transferred to Kingston and Posnack awarded to the Bronx. This completes an association unparalelled in the history of the game, where an entire group continues successfully in professional basketball after defeating all claimants to the collegiate title for two successive years.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Let's all hope the dope is wrong, but the big ten grape-vine says Harry Kipke and good old Hunkus Anderson are on the W. K. spot out at Michigan. . .Bill Robinson, crack colored tap dancer, is Joe Louis' pilot around Hollywood. . Joe paid $5.50 to get into the Maxie Rosenbloom-Bob Nestell tea party the other night and slept through most of the show. . A producer (who rates) is seriously considering starring Max Baer in a Broadway musical next season. . .Maxie, by the way, has stocked up on ten-cent cigars which he'll pass around when he becomes a popper late next month.

Correction: In yesterday's football predictions make it Fordham over Texas Christian, not vice versa. . .Our No. 1 southwest scout (who never done us wrong) says the Horned Frogs ain't what they used to be. . . Everybody wishes Oscar Vitt all the luck in the world at Cleveland and, if you ask us, he'll need plenty of same. . .Yanks will have to revamp their chain store managerial schedule. . .Latest dope has Dutch Zwilling switching from Kansas City to Newark and Casey Stengel (big ears and all) taking over Kaycee. . . Kingfish Levinsky's ex is the star attraction at a burlesque emporium here. . .We dropped in yesterday and must say the gal does all right.

Capers the stock market is cutting must have left some of the boys groggy. . .For instance, one house quotes Yale at 2 to 1 over Cornell. . .Between fights on his South African tour, Petey Sarron, the featherweight champ, hunted baboons. . .First sign of winter: Prof. Harry Mandel announces next six-day bike race will be held in the garden starting November 28. . .Even Pacific coast sports writing boosters have given up on Bos Nestell is a real heavyweight threat. . .Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, arises at 3 p. m. and does all his office work between 1 and 4 a. m.. . . From then until 7 a. m. he decorates what the boys call "the spots."

How do you figger this one: Georgetown U. at Washington is classed as an eastern school and Maryland U. at College Park is in the Southern Conference. . . Yet, when Georgetown plays Maryland on the latter's ground, it travels north to play a southern team. . .And when Maryland goes to Washington to play Georgetown, you have a southern team moving south to play a northeastern school. . .Is that geography?. . .If Moe Berg, educated catcher of the Boston Red Sox (the guy can talk in seven languages) sees this, he should send in his address instanter. . . The south says: All-America scouts should keep an eye on "Tiger" Mayberry, Florida back. . . The guy has it.

Invisible "black light" acting on fluorescent paint will impart new wealth of color to architectural features of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

NEW POPULARITY FOR YOU WHEN YOU TEACH YOURSELF TO TAP

You're in Demand at Parties, Shows

Bravo for Kit—gaily tapping her way to the prize at the radio amateur hour.

But life's all fun to Kit these days—she's a hit at parties too—since she taught herself to tap dance. For teach herself she did—from simple diagrams and instructions at home.

Tap dancing, she discovered, isn't at all as intricate as it looks. Even the flashing routines you see in the movies—the dances such as Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers do—are based on a few tap sounds simple to learn. You can do them easily Begin with the Front and Back Taps. Combine them in a Shuffle as the diagram shows.

To do the Front Tap, stand on the left foot, hold the right foot a few inches off the floor by bending the right knee Kick the right foot forward by straightening the right knee. Let the ball of the foot strike the floor with a sharp sound.

Then reverse the movement for the Back Tap and go into the Shuffle. Let the foot swing back and forth — faster and faster—like a pendulum, but don't miss a single tap. On the Front Tap point the foot outward, on the Tack Tap swing it inward.

Soon you're tapping out rhythems to your favorite tunes, practicing popular Buck and Waltz Routines, making up your own.

In our 40-page booklet, SELF-INSTRUCTION IN TAP DANCING, a well-known teacher gives instructions and diagrams you can easily follow. Practice routines, full-length Buck, Waltz and Military Routines. Just what you need to be a star at parties and entertainments — and marvelous for your figure, too.

Send 15c for our booklet, SELF-INSTRUCTION IN TAP DANCING, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

KingGeorgeCloses Historic Session Of Parliament

London, Oct. 22 (AP) — King George VI officially closed today a historic parliamentary session—which his brother, now the Duke of Windsor, had opened last November 3—with a message reflecting "distress" at air and sea attacks on Chinese noncombatants.

The King's message proroguing Parliament was read to assembled Commons and Lords by Lord Chancellor Hailsham.

It detailed the government's "persistence" in efforts to isolate warring Spain and noted "with satisfaction the strengthening of all three of my defense forces."

On Tuesday the King comes in person to the House of Lords to open the Parliament session, and it was thought he would himself read the opening speech:

George's message today did not mention Windsor. It began, "The Queen and I," and contained the familiar phrase, "my relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly."

Dealing with the Chinese-Japanese warfare, the monarch expressed the hope that the nine-power conference meeting in Brussels October 30 "may contribute to bring this deplorable conflict to an end."

Just before that he had said: "I have seen with greatest concern the development of hostilities between Japan and China sufferings which have been inflicted upon innocent noncombatants by attacks from the air and sea have caused me particular distress."

On the Spanish situation, the King said he was "happy" at the successful outcome of the Nyon agreement for action against Mediterranean "piracy." However, he did not go into the newest non-intervention developments.

Otherwise, his message dealt with their Majesties' gratitude for proofs of the people's loyalty and affection.

The King said the "heavy burden of this necessary rearmament" is somewhat lightened by increasing economic prosperity.

Before borrowing ... consider the value of a loan to you. Know what it costs to borrow—and what it might cost not to borrow.
